Northville recruits Canton safety director

Canton Township Director of Public Safety Todd Mutchler will be leaving his position to join the staff in Northville Township.

Northville Township Manager Chip Snider announced last Friday that Mutchler has agreed to become the Deputy Director of Police Services effective May 1. He will report directly to John Werth, director of public safety in Northville Township.

Mutchler will retire from Canton Township position, where he is paid $131,628 annually, on April 30.

Werth said that Mutchler was "a perfect fit" and called him "exceptional at all levels."

"I'm very excited and looking forward to having Todd become a part of our team. His organizational leadership and his values will bring a new dimension to our public safety department."

"Todd brings extensive experience and will add the necessary leadership and depth that will assist our transformation," Snider said in a prepared statement.

That transformation is due, Werth confirmed, to department retirements and attrition.

"Two lieutenants have recently retired and I have all new sergeants. I have a very young department," Werth said. "I am giving up the day-to-day operations of the police department."

"John Werth and I have worked with Todd in the past and have the utmost respect for his experience and accomplishments," Snider said. "We have developed a trusted relationship that will enable us to effectively manage the changes currently happening in the Public Safety Department."

Mutchler has been with the Canton Police Department for 23 years, starting as a patrolman. He has served at all leadership levels and became public safety director in 2012. He holds a masters degree in interdisciplinary technology from Eastern Michigan University where he also earned his bachelors degree in criminal justice. He graduated from the FBI Academy in 2014. He will be paid $114,000 annually as the deputy director in Northville Township.

Snider said that Mutchler has a breadth of perspective and experience and a solid background in building and maintaining strong relationships with

Going Wild Red Wings alumni will face off against mayor's team

Mayor William R. Wild and his Westland Wild Wings are once again getting ready to lace up their skates to challenge Darren McCarty and the Detroit Red Wing Alumni in the 7th Annual Hockey Night in Westland charity event.

The game will begin at 7 p.m. March 18 at the Mike Modano Ice Arena located at 6210 N. Wildwood in Westland. Doors open at 5:30 p.m.

"This annual event draws more than 800 spectators and has raised thousands of dollars to benefit improvements to the Mike Modano Ice arena," said Wild.

The annual alumni game has turned into one of the most anticipated and popular events in the city, according to a prepared statement from Wild's office.

Tickets for the game are priced at $10 for adults and $5 for children. Those younger than 3 will be admitted at no cost.

Tickets are on sale now and can be purchased at Wild's office in city hall, the Mike Modano Ice arena and North Brothers Ford.

Tickets are available online at <http://westlandticketleap.com/hockeynight/>. Seating is limited.

Other activities planned for the evening include "score-o" and "chuck-a-puck." There will also be several raffles.

This year, as part of Westland's Compassionate City Initiative, Wild is asking event attendees continue to help out residents of Flint by bringing a water donation to the hockey game or a monetary donation in the form of a check made out to the City of Westland. Anyone who brings a donation will receive a ticket for a special raffle of a $50 visa card, sponsored by Parkside Dental.

Township to take land deal to Supreme Court

"If we win this, we would be taking property from the people of Detroit. I totally disagree with this. If (the property purchase) has stunk from day one and we all know it. It's time to move on."

Despite losses in both Wayne County Circuit and the Michigan Court of Appeals, members of the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees voted 3-2 last week to take their disputed claim on 190 acres of land to the Michigan Supreme Court.

To date, the township has spent more than $77,000 in legal fees pursuing their claim on the land, part of a 223-acre parcel that was once Detroit House of Corrections property. The township purchased the land at a Wayne County tax foreclosure sale in 2011 for $606,000 which was later ruled improper by the courts, as the land has belonged to the City of Detroit since 1919 and municipal land is exempt from foreclosure by state law.

That law and the additional argument of Detroit attorneys that the city had not received adequate notice of any tax delinquency was first upheld by Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Robert Colombo, Jr. His ruling was staunchly upheld by a three-judge appeals court panel last month. The judges further upheld the state law exempting municipally-owned property from foreclosure, despite township attorney Kevin's Bennett's argument before Colombo that the law states the municipal land must be for public use to qualify for such an exemption. The appeals judges ordered the land returned to the City of Detroit.

A 133-acre portion of the Detroit-owned, 322-acre site on Five Mile, west of Ridge Road, was sold to a developer in 2006. Detroit retained title to the remaining 190 acres, the subject of the legal dispute. The large parcel was never correctly split into two sections according to township and county records and tax notices for the

Fired superintendent will continue as consultant

The Van Buren Public Schools will pay terminated superintendent Michael Van Tassel $290,233 to finalize his contract with the district.

Van Tassel will also remain on the school payroll as a consultant for up to 10 hours a week as needed until Jan. 31, 2017. His work as a consultant will be completed off-site but he could be called to the district offices if interim superintendent Shonta Langford-Green determines he is needed.

Langford-Green was named as the interim replacement for Van Tassel at a heated meeting of the members of the board of education last week. She is the Human Resources Director for the district and will continue in that capacity while being paid an extra $100 per day as the interim schools chief.

While the termination of Van

Tassel met with vocal approval from the assembled crowd at the meeting, the appointment of Langford-Green was not favored by everyone. Some members of the audience suggested that Langford-Green had been supporting Van Tassel and that the teachers and administrators who did not have confidence in her ability to change the environment in the district schools.

Barbara Rogalle Miller told the board members that Langford-Green had been part of the administration in which the community had no confidence and suggested that the board members contact the Regional Educational Service Agency (RESA) which, she said, has a roster of qualified educators who will take on short-term superintendent assignments.

Police contract arbitration continues

Don Howard
Staff Writer

Plymouth Township police officers continue to work without a union agreement, a situation that has continued since their contract expired in December 2014.

During the 14 months since that time, the township and the Police Officers of Michigan (POAM) have been unable to reach an agreement through negotiations or mediation. Contract negotiations began in August of 2014 but those talks failed and the police union filed for state mediation, which began in September of 2015. State Mediator Robert Strassberg agreed that negotiations were hopelessly deadlocked after three sessions, with no agreement on health care and retirement benefits. Strassberg agreed that the inability of the township and the union to reach any consensus led binding arbitration as the only option for the 38 member department.

The case has been assigned to state arbitrator Stanley Dobry.

Union representatives and township negotiators have made no comment about the ongoing stalemate due to the pending legal arbitration proceedings although sources close to the situation claim that the township has delayed the contract for an unprecedented amount of time and that the officers are being treated unfairly.

"We're trying to move it forward, and we're not that far apart," said Township Supervisor Shannon Price.

"We're trying to move it forward, and we're not that far apart."

Township Supervisor Shannon Price

Price was hesitant to answer questions about the long expired contract and the related union talks but defended the township's tactics, emphasizing, "We're not stalling."

"We're trying to move it forward, and we're not that far apart."

The township officials who make up the negotiation team include Price, Township Treasurer Ron Edwards, Clerk Nancy Conzelmann and Troy attorney Gregory Schultz of Schultz & Young. Schultz represents Plymouth Township in collective bargaining for the police and fire departments.

In addition to the 21 rank and file officers POAM also represents 10 township dispatchers. The four department sergeants are considered command officers and part of the bargaining unit. They are represented by the Command Officers Association of Michigan (COAM). Contract negotiations for the command officers and dispatchers have been previously settled. The police chief and two lieutenants are not union employees.

Township Ofc. Steve Coffel is the department POAM union representative.

Price said he was new to union negotiations.

"I got sworn in on a Monday and Tuesday we had a meeting with POAM."

The basic issues in most public safety negotiations are wages, health care and retirement benefits. Plymouth Township issues are no different.

"We're trying to negotiate with the police union to address long term costs, like pension and retiree health care and we're not that far apart," will be done by Mag. Price said.

The proposed 2016 budget for the police department is $3,900,000.

property went to the purchaser of the smaller section. That developer never paid any taxes on any of the property and the township subsequently sent notices of that non-payment to Wayne County which eventually foreclosed on the entire 320-acre site. The land was then offered for sale to the state, which by law has the right of first refusal, and then to the township. Plymouth Township immediately purchased the land, once on the tax rolls at more than $15 million, for $600,000 plus back taxes, estimated at another $100,000.

Trustees Bob Doroshewitz and Chuck Carmi voted against spending any further legal fees, estimated at $100,000 to create a leave to appeal brief, in an attempt to overturn the court decisions while Supervisor Shannon Price, Clerk Nancy Conzelmann and Trustee Mike Kelly voted in favor of continuing the legal battle. Treasurer Ron Edwards and Trustee Steve Mann, called the "architects" of the land deal, were not at the special meeting Monday.

Price told the board members that the township would be walking away from more than $200,000 if no further appeal of the court decisions were authorized.

Doroshewitz, a practicing attorney, strongly disagreed and suggested the township should accept the court deci-slones.

"If we win this, we would be taking property from the people of Detroit. I totally disagree with this. If the property purchase had been from day one and we all know it. It's time to move on," he said.

Cox said that the continued legal wrangling would keep pressure on Wayne County and attorneys at the City of Detroit during negotiations for a return of taxes paid by the township on the land. The appeals court decision precludes the county from collecting any back taxes from the City of Detroit, Cox said. He insisted that filing for a hearing before the state Supreme Court would put pressure on the City of Detroit and Wayne County to reach a settlement agreement and refund taxes to Plymouth Township.

State Supreme Court Justice Brian Zahra presided over Prices ceremonial swearing-in at his first board of trustees meeting as supervisor last April. Justice Stephen J. Markham was previously an attorney with Miller-Camfield, Paddock and Stone, based in Detroit, where Trustee Steve Mann is now employed.

Despite Price's opening comments contending that it was Wayne County that sent the tax notices and set the foreclosure and subsequent tax sale of the land, spokesmen from the office of the Wayne County Treasurer have repeatedly stated that their actions in the tax notifications, foreclosure proceedings and subsequent tax sale were based solely on information and records provided by Plymouth Township and that the county has no legal exposure in the matter. Deputy Treasurer Eric Sabree re-affirmed the statements Wayne County attorney Jacob Ghanman recited in the circuit court trial before Columbus, disavowing any error on the part of the treasurer's office in the matter.

Bennett claims that the developer who purchased the 135-acre parcel had an agreement with Detroit to file the land, split documentation, and that the township acted in good faith in the purchase of the land at the tax sale.

Detroit attorneys disputed that claim in their court filings, however, and suggested that the township was culpable in "engineering" the mailing of tax notices to the incorrect owner and then to the incorrect address in an effort to benefit from a "windfall" at the expense of the City of Detroit.

Cox, however, claims that the City of Detroit is being "unfairly enriched" at the expense of Plymouth Township which paid taxes on the land as part of the foreclosure sale purchase and since that time.

Annual museum event to honor donor Margaret Dunning

The annual Plymouth Historical Museum event, "A Night FOR the Museum," is planned for Saturday, March 12, at the Fox Hills Golden Pines.

The event this year will celebrate Margaret Dunning, the major benefactor of the museum, who died last year at the age of 104.

"Margaret lived here on Pennington Avenue in the same house since she was a teenager," said Museum Director Liz Kerstens. Dunning paid for the original museum building in the early 1970s and then donated the funding for the addition that was built in early 2000.

"She was devoted to preserving the history of this community and she charged the Friends of the Plymouth Historical Museum to maintain the museum as a vibrant and welcoming place for visitors," Kerstens said. "We do not receive government funding of any kind, so we work very hard with the gala and other events to ensure that we are able to continue the work Margaret started."

More than 100 volunteers give their time and talents at the museum for everything from maintenance, exhibits, archives, education, and as guides.

"We even receive donations from former Plymouth residents who now live in other parts of the country," Kerstens said.

"They still feel a connection to the community and its history. Plymouth is just that kind of place."

Community businesses have donated a generous number of items for the raffle and live auction that will take place at the gala. Some of the most unique and exciting live auction items include a personal visit from Santa Claus, a princess party, Carrie Underwood tickets, "really good" Detroit Tigers tickets, a ride on a fire truck in the Plymouth 4th of July Parade, and a private tea at the Markham/Wilcox House.

Tickets to "A Night FOR the Museum" are still available by calling (734) 455-8940 or online at <http://www.plymouth-history.org/events/A-Night-FOR-the-Museum-ET118.html?SortBox=201603>

The evening will also include raffles, a spirited live auction, socializing, hors d'oeuvres, libations, music and dancing.

Special guest Legislator visits high school

State Rep. Erika Geiss made a special visit to Romulus High School during Legislator to Lunch Week earlier this month.

Geiss visited the school Feb. 19, prompted by Romulus Community Schools Food Service Director Kathleen Norred. The School Nutrition Association of Michigan encourages the partnership between schools and government officials in an effort to establish an ongoing relationship for dialog around the issue of child nutrition programs.

During the four lunch periods at Romulus High School, Geiss was able to speak with students about the variety of healthy lunch options that are offered, in addition to being engaged in their community.

"I loved the visit to Romulus High School. It is a great way to interact with students and to hear about some of their concerns and future goals. We need to ensure that funding is secure in our public schools so that students have nutritional options," Geiss said.

Romulus High School offers multiple food stations on a daily basis that include lean proteins, fresh fruits and vegetables, and made-to-order deli sandwiches.

"This provides us an opportunity to dispel rumors of what some believe school

City allocates grant funding for area parks

A park expansion project may highlight the work completed under the 2016/2017 Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program in Romulus.

Members of the city council unanimously approved about $170,000 in expenditures for the 2016/2017 program during their regular meeting last week. It's about the same amount as the city has available last year, according to Tim Keyes, development director for the City of Romulus.

The Community Development Block Grants are federal funds available through the Housing and Urban Development department. They are administered through Wayne County, and available to pay for programs or projects that directly benefit low to moderate income families or provide funding to improve areas where 51 percent of the residents are in the low to moderate income bracket. The funds are typically used for everything from infrastructure improvements, recreation projects to upgrading deteriorating houses or meeting the needs of elderly or disabled residents.

The $170,000 is an estimate at this point, according to Keyes. The city can spend 10 percent - about $17,000 - on administration and 15 percent - about $25,500 - on services for senior citizens.

"The rest of it we try to match up with projects in the city," said Keyes.

The city has allocated $50,000 for housing rehabilitation, $75,000 for demolition or remediation of blighted areas and about $25,500 for parks and recreation facilities, according to Keyes.

"We're not building up any new parks; we're hoping to expand on one of our existing parks," he said.

Tournament is planned

A youth sports basketball tournament is headed for the Booker Dozier Recreation Complex in Inkster this spring.

The North American Youth Sports organization will host the annual spring youth basketball tournament in Inkster from April 8 through 10, according to an announcement from the group. The tournament will also utilize some other Inkster locations, the announcement said.

The tournament will include 10 brackets for players divided by school grade levels and sex including 5th and 6th grade boys and 5th and 6th grade girls; 7th grade boys; 7th grade girls; 8th grade boys; 8th grade girls; 9th and 10th grade boys; 9th and 10th grade girls; 11th and 12th grade boys and 11th and 12th grade girls. All divisions are based on the grade in which a student is currently enrolled for the 2015-2016 school year, officials said.

The entry fee is $145 and guarantees each team a minimum of three games and awards will be presented to winners in each bracket.

Entries will only be accepted until March 25.

For additional information or an entry form, call 1-800-352-5915 or tournament director Craig Lewis at (734) 377-5154 or visit www.northernamericanyouthsports.org.

BELLEVILLE - NORTHVILLE

There will be a Downtown Development Authority (DDA) in the City of Belleville for another 30 years.

Members of the city council approved an amendment continuing the tax-capture entity during a meeting earlier this month.

The approval came despite the protests and criticism of Belleville Planning Commissioner Mike Renaud, who spoke to the council members urging them not to approve the amendment as, he said, the DDA captures most of the city tax revenue and income. He said that the DDA captures much of the income and the city is unable to pay employees. He also suggested that keeping the same plan in place for another 30 years in the community would handcuff the city financially.

According to Renaud, the DDA captured $773,000 in tax money from the city this year. "The rest of the city is really struggling," he told the council members.

Carol Thompson, the coordinator of the Belleville DDA said that the organization is attempting to arrest the deterioration of the downtown. She said that more than a year went into the planning of the amendment which will remain in effect until 2046.

Renaud insisted that the DDA has not prompted development or built any new structures and that the group gives no funding to the police or fire department. He said the city has laid off most of the Department of Public Works employees due to budget cuts and the DDA captured taxes could be used to pay wages for city employees.

Mayor Kerroen Conley, who is also a member of the DDA board, said that the city would risk losing $300,000 in tax revenue if officials chose to eliminate the DDA. She said that the DDA made a large capital contribution to the city.

The amendment was approved by a unanimous vote of the city council.

Northville Township names new assistant manager

Debra Wilhelm has been named as the Assistant Northville Township Manager. She has been with the township since July of 1998, according to a prepared statement from the office of Township

Manager Chip Snider:

"Debra has a solid background in administration, organizational development and human resource management," noted Snider. "She has a reputation as a leader and motivator of others to optimum performance while creating a positive environment that assures open communication and mutual support."

Snider said that Wilhelm is experienced and occupational-ly trained in administration, budgeting, contractual administration and labor and community relations.

"Ms. Wilhelm is formally educated, informally mentored and has systematically completed a wide variety of projects demonstrating her ability to operate without direct supervision but under the unforgiving scrutiny of many bosses, both elected and appointed," Snider said.

No action was taken by the board on her suggestion.

Trustee Sherry Frazier told the crowd that the district was at a "crossroads." She said that Langford-Green was not interested in the superintendent's job permanently, but agreed to "pitch-in" to help. She said that Langford-Green could give the board two weeks notice at any time and that the board could also terminate the new arrangement if it was not satisfactory.

Van Tassel was terminated by a unanimous vote of the board after a closed session proceeding the public meeting. His handling of issues in the district and the morale of teachers have been the subject of public comment at meetings for several months.

Parents criticized his having five teachers removed from Savage Elementary School in full view of students following an investigation of cheating on state-mandated tests. The state Department of Education has disallowed the results of the Savage tests and Van Tassel agreed to independent interviews of students which parents said was upsetting to children.

Van Tassel and the principal at Belleville High School did not notify parents last month when a freshman student was found with a gun and ammunition at the high school, another incident which outraged many parents.

Trustee Sherry Frazier, who had been charged with assault by Van Tassel following an argument in the district offices, told the crowd, "The tragedy of what we've gone through as a district lies at this board table," to loud applause from the crowd.

New recreation director already at work

The new Westland Parks and Recreation Director began work last month, immediately following confirmation of his appointment by members of the city council during a regular meeting.

John Adams is no stranger to the city, having retired from the Westland Fire Department in 2014 where he was an assistant fire chief/fire marshal. Most recently, he had been working as the chief executive officer of the Inkster Fire Department.

In his new position, which is a one-year mayoral appointment, Adams will be paid $78,902 annually as a contract employee with no medical or pension benefits. He replaces Jessica Mistak whose appointment was not renewed by Mayor William Wild in December.

Wild told the council members during the meeting that his selection of Adams was based on the retired fire official's ability to "get things done," his education, work ethic and the $70,000 cost savings in hiring him as a contract employee.

Adams' appointment had been previously criticized by some residents who claimed that his appointment as parks and recreation director would be double-dipping as he currently collects a pension from the city. Critics also cited his lack of experience in parks and recreation administration.

The Local Officials Compensation Commission set the salary for the parks and recreation director at $103,000 plus benefits, an increase to the city of $150,000, according to Wild.

Hiring Adams on the contract basis saved the city close to $70,000 annually, the mayor said. He said that Adams earned his pension in the fire department during his years of service and would receive it no matter if he ever worked for the city again.

Audience members Bill Campbell and Judy McKinney repeated their criticisms of the appointment, which they had voiced at a previous meeting.

claiming that Adams was somehow "double dipping" into city coffers. Campbell said he was told by the city clerk's office he would have to file a Freedom of Information Act request to see the contract offered to Adams, which members of the council received the day of the meeting.

"Citizens have a right to see the contract," he said. "What are you trying to hide?"

State Rep. Robert Kosowski, D-Westland, was at the meeting to support Adams' appointment.

Kosowski is a retired Westland Parks and Recreation Department director who said he came specifically to support Adams' appointment to the job.

John Adams

Councilmen Kevin Coleman and Peter Herzberg cast the only no votes on Adams' confirmation.

Facade grants offered through Main Street program

Applications for Wayne Main Street Facade Incentive grants are now available at the Wayne Main Street office inside the Wayne Historical Museum, 1 Towns Square. The applications can also be downloaded at <http://downtownwayne.org/businessgrant>.

The grant program is available to Wayne business or building owners within the Main Street district. Grants are available on a first-come, first-served basis. The funding cycle begins Jan. 1 with a total of $20,000 available. There is a limit of $10,000 on any single project and the grants will fund up to 50 percent of the improvements to a business facade.

The program also offers a free design service that business owners can use independently or as part of the grant program.

Wayne Main Street Executive Director Lindsey Wooten said that the grant program was created to encourage private investment in historic facades by providing financial incentives.

Historically sensitive rehabilitation and dramatic improvement of facades in downtown Wayne will encourage good design that will serve as quality examples to preserve the architectural character that is distinctive to Wayne, she explained during a meeting recently.

For more information, call (734) 629-6822. The office is open from noon until 3 p.m. Wednesday and 4-7 p.m. Thursday.
