Poltergeist? Priests, plumbers and psychics probe possible paranormal presence

Despite the best efforts of electricians, plumbers, cable technicians and even priests, no explanation has been found for the mysterious occurrences at Greek Islands Cony Island in downtown Plymouth.

Until last week, when a visit from Ghost Hunting Sisters, a professional group of spiritualists, and a pair of psychic readers from Illuminate Your Spirit in Plymouth, may have provided some answers to the myriad of mysterious events at the restaurant.

Owners George and Terri Stefanakis, along with their son, Stefan, certainly had their doubts about the presence of any supernatural entities in the building. But after four years of unexplainable phenomena, they agreed to their son's suggestion, and called in experts in the field of otherworldly happenings. After all, Stefanakis, 28, said, they had already tried just about every other kind of professional possible to find the source of the middle-of-the-night water leaks, the unexplainable 5 a.m. phone calls and the uncomfortable atmosphere often experienced in the basement of the former bank building, originally constructed in the 1920s. Prior to that time, the Coleman building, built in 1883, stood at the site, although historical records are sketchy before then when Penman was Sutton Street. Before the first settlement recordings about 1824, the Tongish Band of the Potawatomi Indians apparently roamed the area.

Plumbers called in repeatedly could find no reason for the puddles and almost nightly leaks in the dishwashing area at the restaurant, electricians have jokingly suggested the place could be haunted because there is no mechanical reason that accounts for the way the lights appear to operate independently of any human control and, well, just don't get Stefan Stefanakis started on the number of long conversations and extensive work by the phone service providers who cannot explain the middle-of-the-night calls to staff members, their significant others and to Stefanakis at home. One employee received a 5 a.m. call from her own cell phone, something that had her provider as puzzled as she was. "On the security cameras, you can see the phone buttons light up as if somebody is making a call, and sure enough, my cell phone rings at 5 in the morning," Stefanakis said.

He made it very clear that neither he nor his parents have ever believed in ghosts, but that the continued phone calls and turning on of the water at night made them more than a little nervous.

"Then we get to the lights. Whoever locks up at night, turns off the television monitors. We come in the next morning, one TV is on. Over and over and over. I turn the lights off, turn the TVs off myself. I know they are off. You see they are off on the security cameras. The next morning, come in to open up, one TV is on," Stefanakis said.

Then there are the small items that go missing.

"It is unbelievable," Stefanakis said. "Look, we have had 10 restaurants, things go missing. Silverware gets misplaced, but not like this. First it will be gone, then in two weeks, it is back.

"The small nozzles from the pop machines which are removed at night for cleaning. They disappear. Gone. Then, a week later they are back in the cleaning bucket where they belong," Stefanakis said.

The Stefanakis family went so far as to have priests from their church come to the restaurant to bless the premises. Just as, they said, a "precaution" after electricians, plumbers, cable television repairmen and phone technicians could find nothing amiss.

That precaution seemed advisable after the security cameras caught what appears to be something or someone, invisible to the camera, tugging and pulling on a 50-pound bag of onions near where another in the series of puddles is appearing near the dishwashing area.

"That one even made me

Belleville mayor joins Canton staff

The new human resources manager in Canton Township has a wealth of municipal experience.

Korreen Conley, the current mayor of the City of Belleville, began her new job with Canton this week replacing Gwyn Belcher who resigned the position in January.

One of Conley's first tasks will be helping to find a replacement for Director of Public Safety Todd Mutchler who is leaving Canton to become the Deputy Director of Public Safety in Northville Township.

Conley, chosen from more than 113 candidates who applied for the Canton position, has 25 years of experience having worked as the finance director in Ypsilanti and as the city manager in Belleville. Her mayoral position there is part time.

Her new duties will include participation in negotiations with township unions.

Conley was elected to her second four-year term as Belleville mayor last November.

Inkster voters OK charter revisions

Inkster voters have agreed with Mayor Byron Nolen that it is time for a change in the city charter which was originally adopted in 1964.

Voters were asked in a one-sentence ballot question whether they would support a revision to the city charter. No specific topics of any such revisions were provided on the ballot which voters approved with 2,636 yes votes as opposed to a total of 1,084 no votes. A total of 4,867 votes were cast in the March 8 balloting in Inkster.

"My faith in the residents of Inkster is renewed. I look forward to the recommendations of the charter commission and to see what revisions they may recommend in our charter," Nolen said last week after the votes were counted.

During his State of the City message this year Nolen suggested the city would benefit a move from the current city manager form of government to a strong mayor system. Nolen, who is now part time, suggested a full-time mayor who would manage the day-to-day operations of the city as the chief executive. In that system, the mayor also hires and fires department heads and is subject to a veto by a two-thirds majority of the members of the city council.

With the approval of the measure by voters, there will now be an election May 3 in the city to choose nine members of the Charter Revision Commission from the current roster of 15 candidates.

"It is an honor to see what the recommendations are and let the process take its course," Nolen said.

Students demonstrate new leadership skills

Barth Elementary School students demonstrated their developing leadership skills to a crowd of visitors last week during their annual Leadership Day.

The event allows students to showcase how being a "Leader in Me School" has improved the overall learning environment, educators said. Throughout the day students performed a musical act, hosted tours for parents and shared their daily responsibilities.

Educators at Barth have implemented the Seven Habits of Highly Effective People created by Steven Covey. Ideals, and principles in the classrooms. The habits are designed to prepare students for success by developing their self-confidence and teamwork skills. The habits comprise timeless principles that help individuals cultivate personal and interpersonal effectiveness, administrators said.

Barth Principal David Thompson said he believes his staff and students have rallied around the program and it has created a positive atmosphere.

"Everyone has the ability to lead, for some it just needs to be developed," he said.

The "Leader in Me" framework is also designed to support national and state academic standards. The process teaches the skills needed for academic success in any setting and provides a logical, sequential and balanced procedure for schools to design an ideal culture and a vision.

"After visiting other Leader in Me Schools I knew it was a perfect fit for our students and what we are trying to accomplish at Barth Elementary," Thompson said.

$15,000 grant will fund Jaws of Life purchase

The City of Romulus will take delivery of some new fire equipment without any cost to taxpayers.

The city has received a $15,000 grant from AAA Michigan to purchase a Jaws of Life system as well as three lifting airbags to use at crash sites.

Deputy Fire Chief Kevin Krause said the equipment was the best choice for the company in both the short term and the long term.

"We look at the most cost-effective purchase, not only for the initial purchase but also the future maintenance and we factor in those costs as well," he said. "That's how we decide what we're going to apply for in the grant itself."

The city waived the regular bidding process in order to receive the grant, but Krause said that the department researched the gear, the best outfitters and costs as part of the process of writing the grant.

"You have to be very specific about what you are writing the grant for; you have to provide quotes for that system and, upon the reward, that's what you have to purchase," he said.

The air bags will replace older equipment that is no longer usable, he added.

The fire department also entered into a one-year contract with HealthLink Medical Transportation for private ambulance services. HealthLink is the most experienced of the three companies that responded to the sealed bidding process, and the fees were in line with the other two. Technology was also a factor.

The ambulance crews will be stationed at Fire station III at Wayne and Ecorse roads.

"It allows us to work in tandem with them to cover both areas of the city," Krause said.

CANTON - BELLEVILLE

Canoe rentals proposed for Belleville Lake

Belleville Mayor Kerreen Conley cast the lone no vote on a proposed canoe/kayak rental business planned for Horizon Park.

The plan for the new rental operation was presented to the members of the city council by the Belleville Downtown Development Authority during a regular meeting last week. The business would be operated by Motor City Canoe Rental and would include a shed for the boats and equipment located next to the Veterans Memorial in the park.

John Elvins of the rental business suggested publicizing the availability of the rentals with vinyl signs on Belleville Bridge but was told by both Council and members of the council that no banners were allowed on the county-owned bridge. Conley told the crowd that only special events have been temporarily advertised with banners on the bridge.

"I would not be in favor of it," she said.

The current plan is to bring 12 rental watercraft, six canoes, four kayaks and two paddleboards, to Horizon Park. Rentals would be priced at $10 an hour with a two-hour minimum. The expected start date would be in May with weekend rentals, moving to a seven-day operation from noon until 6 or 8 p.m. weekdays and 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. on weekends sometime in June.

Motor City Canoe Rental would pay 5 or 10 percent of gross rental fees to the city, based on negotiations for the provision of an equipment shed, expected to cost about $3,500 to $4,000 to build.

Conley said her vote was based on the need for more information about the availability of rescue personnel and equipment should one of the rented watercraft run into difficulties.

The issue is expected to be discussed at a future meeting of the city council.

Women's Giving Circle sets annual fundraiser

Never underestimate the power of a group of determined women.

During the past four years, Giving Hope, Women's Giving Circle, a fund of the Canton Community Foundation, has collected about $10,000 annually to donate back to the community for projects that benefit women and children.

The group will again sponsor their annual charity event from 6:30-9 p.m. April 13 at Fox Hills Golf & Banquet Center.

About 75 women comprise the donor-advised Giving Circle, which provided grants to address the needs of women and families in the greater Canton and Plymouth area.

Chairperson of the event this year, Betty Bloch, said she is pleased at the participation and involvement of the community with the Giving Hope program.

"What started out four years ago as a simple social event, where we could raise a little money for a local cause, has become a spectacular way to help local women's and children's non-profits and have a great girls' night out," Bloch said. "This demonstrates the positive power that occurs when a great group of women comes together."

Last year, more than 200 women attended the event which will include food and a cash bar; shopping and a fashion show featuring styles from local shops and boutiques; a raffle and a variety of silent auction items. The event fee is $35 and pre-registration is required at www.cantonfoundation.org.

Proceeds from the event will be used to support the efforts of Saint Joseph Mercy Health System in bringing the ShapeDown program to the greater Canton and Plymouth area. Past recipients of funding from the Giving Hope, Women's Giving Circle have included Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Clothing Bank; several early childhood programs and the purchase of children's furniture for First Step Temporary Emergency Housing for abused women and children.

For more information or to register for the event, visit the Giving Hope page at www.cantonfoundation.org or call Beth Meade at (734) 465-1200.

Annual charity auction planned

A trip to Cabo San Lucas, a pair of diamond earrings and airline tickets are among the items the Canton Chamber of Commerce will auction off during the 29th Annual Auction.

The group has planned a rock 'n' roll theme for the event which will take place from 6:30 p.m. until midnight Saturday, April 16 at Burton Manor in Livonia. The event usually brings hundreds of people out to help support the chamber and this year, according to a spokesman, some will be dressed as their favorite rock star.

The auction is the largest fundraiser of the year for the group.

Tickets are $75 per person and include an open bar, a strolling dinner, entertainment and, of course, the auctions and raffles. More information is available at (734) 463-4040. Major sponsors of the event this year are Jack Demmer Ford, Inc. and Beaumont Healthcare-Canton, Inc.

INKSTER - WAYNE - WESTLAND

Marketing of former city hall site approved

Development at the site of the former Westland City Hall and some adjoining property will be controlled by city officials.

Members of the city council approved a plan to market the 12.5 acre site on Ford Road which includes the site of the former city hall, the Bailey Recreation Center, a fire station and a building the city purchased last year.

Both the city hall building and recreation center are expected to be demolished within the next few weeks.

According to Bruce Thompson, the director of planning and building for the city, the Downtown Development Authority has hired McKenna Associates to help with the sale of the land. Thompson, Mayor

Bill Wild and City Council President James Godbout comprise the Property Disposition Committee and the council approved a recommendation from them to begin to actively market the land which is near Carlson.

In response to questions from some members of the city council, city attorney James Pausone explained that the approval of the marketing effort does not impact control of the land. He assured the council members that the city would maintain control of the property and does not have to sell the site to anyone who may make an offer.

"The city ultimately controls the site," he told the council members during their meeting last week.

The property is currently zoned for office/business which could be somewhat restrictive since there has been discussion of recreation use at the site, according to Thompson. He also explained that the site does not include the parking lot used by the 18th District Court. He suggested that a zoning change could be made and even a shared parking arrangement negotiated with a developer.

State legislators tour Burger Baylor school

Students at the Burger Baylor School in Inkster had some very special visitors last week.

State Rep. Julie Plawewski (D-Dearborn Heights) hosted legislators from around the state on a tour of the school for students with autism. Her guests included State Rep. Frank Liberati (D-Allen Park) and state Senator Rick Jones (R-Grand Ledge), co-chairs of the legislative Disabilities Awareness Caucus. The legislators attended the tour to learn more about the use of restraint and seclusion in special education center based programs, according to Plawewski.

"It was a great experience having legislators and staff from around the state come to my district for this very informative tour," said Plawewski. "After introducing this legislation, they were able to again see how these policy changes would impact schools. This is a very important part of the legislative process, and I commend them for attending this tour."

"The use of restraint and seclusion is an incredibly sensitive issue. The reforms we are proposing could have some fairly large implications on all Michigan schools," said Liberati. "So before we make changes to the bills, Senator Jones and I wanted to make sure that we were aware of the challenges that staff members face in the classroom. In my mind, this package is about the balance between safety and a student's dignity."

The Special Education Reform Task Force, chaired by Lt. Governor Brian

Calley, recommended reforms to the governor last month. Included in the recommendations were restrictions on the use of restraint and seclusion to specified emergency situations. Liberati and Jones are currently working on a package of bills that would put the recommendations of the task force into action.

Wayne High School team heads to championships

After advancing through two phases of online competition, the Wayne Memorial High School Junior Reserve Officer Training Corp (JROTC) Leadership Team composed of Coach Sgt. First Class Stanley Lewis, Cadets Makyla Carpenter, Ian Baker, Ryan Carney, Jeremy Harpster, Denisia Thompson and Samantha Tillman will compete in person at the championship event in Washington, DC. The 2016 Army JROTC Leadership Bowl Championship will take place on the campus of The Catholic University of America, June 24-28. This event is sponsored by the Army JROTC and is conducted by College Options Foundation.

The Wayne Memorial JROTC team earned top scores out of the 1,378 teams from around the world that competed and placed first in the Region of 7th Brigade (Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee). The team is one of only 40 Army JROTC Leadership Bowl teams in the nation to advance to the National Leadership Bowl competition, which includes an all-expense paid trip to the championship event in DC. During the two fast-paced preliminary rounds, cadets were tested on their knowledge of current events, leadership values, and leadership skills.

The JROTC Leadership and Academic Bowl (JLAB) is a nationally recognized competition created exclusively for JROTC students. By participating, cadets learn the values of citizenship, academic competition, and college opportunity. The competition creates opportunities for JROTC cadets by allowing them to demonstrate leadership and academic abilities, according to a spokesperson.

College Options Foundation is a non-profit organization dedicated to enriching the academic development of high school students and assisting them in their preparation for higher education.

Using academic competitions, college examination study guides, college admissions tutorials and personalized counseling, College Options Foundation has assisted JROTC cadets worldwide for more than a decade.

Commission to add an additional liquor license

It will take amendments to both the alcohol management and zoning ordinances, but an additional liquor license is being considered by members of the Plymouth City Commission.

The raise on the cap of 14 licenses in the downtown area has been a contested issue for years, with commissioners steadfastly refusing to lift the limit. Another 10 licenses are allowed in the city outside the downtown area. During their regular meeting last week, commissioners approved adding another license by a 4-3 vote.

Commissioner Cohen Pebar, who formerly worked for the Liquor Control Commission, voted in favor of lifting the cap along with Commissioners Joe Valenti, Mike Wright and Oliver Wolcott. Mayor Dan Dwyer and Commissioners Suzi Deal and Dan Dalton voted no on the proposal.

Pebar said after the meeting that it has been 13 years since the commission has made any changes.

"Both the current licenses and our police department have done an excellent job. In the past two years there have been no problems. Things have gotten considerably better," she said.

"For the first time since 2007 there have been no complaints to the Liquor Control Commission. This didn't happen by accident. The police and the businesses have been great partners. The fact that people act in a good and responsible way is laudable," she said.

During the meeting, Valenti said that Plymouth was a business community and the commission members needed to be responsive.

Past critics of allowing more licenses have said Plymouth will become a 'destination' for drinkers and compared it to Royal Oak.

Pebar said she felt the city was already a destination. "But I think it's the very best kind of destination. I worked for the state Liquor Control Commission for four years and my job was to conduct hearings and I never heard of a hearing from Royal Oak," she said.

Pebar said that the city is going to create an evaluation criteria, draw from the city ordinances, weigh the factors, get a requestor for qualification and evaluate the entire request before granting an additional license.

The issue of parking was also cited by Dwyer during discussion at the meeting. Pebar said that the city has added 45 spaces and is working with the Downtown Development Authority on the Saxton property to add more.

"I think when people come to Plymouth they realize that have to look for a parking spot. Parking will be a significant consideration in any future licenses," she said.

Dwyer was also concerned, he said, about the two licenses currently held in escrow for closed establishments. While the license for Bamboo is within the downtown area, the escrowed license for Plymouth Crossing is outside the downtown limit. The commission has established that license may not be approved by the city commissioners as the current owners own more than $96,000 in back taxes. The owners told the commission that the arrears were caused by massive bills for repairs and renovations to the historic Markham Building where the restaurant is located. They said that the break of a water pipe in the building caused extensive damage. They have until the end of April, according to officials, to pay the arrears. Staff Writer Dan Howard contributed to this story.

Psychics

jump," George Stefanakis, 68, said. The family agreed that they have never had any of these experiences at any of their other restaurants, "not ever."

The mysteries continued, however, even after the priest's visit prompting the family to enlist the aid of the chimeric professionals last week. Ghost Hunting Sisters, Kelly McDonald and Lisa Ganey, whose business is based in Farmington Hills, agreed to take a look, along with Shelly Paul from Westland, the co-owner of Illuminate Your Spirit on Wing Street in Plymouth. Paul is no stranger to psychic phenomena, having had her first experiences with channeling and communicating with spirits at the age of 4.

"The ability always scared me, until I learned to understand it," she said. "We respect spirits and try to help them if they may be stuck here. We do not provoke them, but rather try to help," Paul said. Diane Galindo, a reader at the psychic reading and healing shop, was also on hand for the pursuit of the elusive spirits. Paul said after an earlier visit that she sensed several spiritual entities in the restaurant, the strongest being that of a young boy or child. She said that she sensed no animosity from him, but rather more of a playful energy. Paul suggested the Ghost Hunting Sisters with whom she has worked before in the search for the paranormal take a look.

The women agreed with Paul that there was certainly some psychic or spirit energy in the restaurant.

Ganey and McDonald brought a truck-ful of equipment with them for the Friday night experiment, including Electro Magnetic Frequency (EMF) readers of various types, dowsing rods, digital voice recorders, antennas, thermal imaging goggles, laser grids and other assorted paranormal-finding devices.

They attempted to communicate with spirits upstairs in the dining area, but were unable to make more than a tentative, instinctual contact. While the EMF readers did blink repeatedly, the sisters agreed that the spirit, or spirits, were moving through the area, not communicating or staying, but rather traveling playfully through the room.

Ganey, McDonald and Paul were then eager to take on whatever they might find in the basement, while the Stefanakis family was just as willing to visit upstairs, hoping that the psychic experts wouldn't meet anyone from the great beyond.

Hours of painstaking equipment installation and attempts at channeling and communication later, and after a number of forays into other areas with possible other spirits, the women made contact, they believe, with a long-deceased spirit who simply has not yet crossed over into whatever awaits on the opposite side of life.

They determined the spirit was a Native Indian who died violently more than a century ago at the hands of a group of women who stoned him to death after he was accused of committing a heinous crime against either an early female settler or a woman of his tribe. He has remained near his former tribal grounds and he has been happy there, Paul believed, until the female restaurant employees arrived in what he considers his space. The spirit's fascination with the dishwashing sink in the building could be traced to the nearby location of the Rouge River and Tonnish Creek where his tribe would have established their camp centuries ago to be near water.

"He does not like women at all," confirmed Paul, who seemed intuitive to the spirit during repeated attempts to communicate.

Determining that this particular spirit would only respect the authority of another man, or chief, and that he has been enjoying pestering the female employees, the ghost hunters called on George Stefanakis to confront him. Stefanakis followed their instructions and repeated what the experts told him to say to the spirit, forcefully ordering him to behave and stop his tricks or Stefanakis would force him to leave the building. According to Galindo, the entity communicated his agreement to those terms and an uneasy pact between the building occupants has been reached.

Stefanakis said he and his family are waiting to see if the spiritualists' efforts pay off.

"I don't know," he said. "Only time will tell. I will say that my family and I thought it was a great experience, though."
