Northville Fire Chief resigns abruptly

Northville Township Fire Chief Richard Marinucci tendered his resignation, effective last Friday, March 18.

No reason for the abrupt departure of the chief was given and he remained unavailable for comment.

Township Manager Chip Snider said that the township does not make public comment on personnel matters.

Marinucci began his tenure with Northville Township in 2009 after his retirement as the fire chief in Farmington Hills where he had served since 1984.

Northville Township Director of Public Safety John Worth also declined comment on the resignation rumored to have been prompted by a "conflict of interest."

Marinucci is a nationally-known firefighter training expert and is the Executive Director of the Fire Department Safety Officers Association, a non-profit established to promote safety standards and practices in the fire, rescue and emergency services community.

A volunteer board of directors leads the association.

End of an era Auction brings end to third generation farm

Don Howard
Staff Writer

The end of an era in Northville Township took place last weekend as items from the George family farm went up for sale.

The third generation family-owned farm, the last of its kind in Northville, is ceasing operations after 80 years. Last Saturday, the 62-year-old grandson of the man who first broke ground at the family farm, part of the 13-square mile area that was dotted with other small farms and accessed only by then-unpaved roads where farmers crops and cattle were the only means of family support, put the equipment on the auction block.

Milan George, Jr. is selling off his land, now surrounded by high-end homes and subdivisions. The George family farm was started in 1936 by Damon George, an immigrant dairy farmer from Yugoslavia, who purchased 30 acres near the northwest corner of Six Mile and Ridge roads.

Starting with a small herd of Holsteins, George moved his family into an existing old farmhouse on Six Mile Road built around the turn of the century. The property contained a gambrel hay barn that was moved there by Plymouth in 1910 and still stands along with the house.

In 1952 George acquired 180 acres, across the way on the south side of Six Mile Road and added another barn to his property.

George's son, Milan R. George, took over the small dairy farm in 1963 when his father died. He operated the farm until his death last September at 86. George graduated from Northville High School in 1946 where he was class president and later served as president of the Detroit Rescue Mission.

He and his son, third-generation farmer Milan "Butch" George, Jr. worked the land together until the senior George's death. Butch George has decided it is time to let go of the land that makes up the western border of the township.

The dairy farm had become a beef and crop farm which Butch George, his wife, Teri, and their 26-year-old son, Damon, had recently downsized to 24 acres. They kept the business open in recent years by planting corn, soybeans and pumpkins and crop farming 300 acres of leased farmland in the surrounding area. In the fall they sold pumpkins and had a corn-maze.

But no more.

Part of the last of the family acreage has been taken over by a utility company and last week, George hired an auctioneer and placed everything on the block; his combine, tractors, trailers, tools and equipment and even old tires. More than 50 farmers from out-counties showed-up early on the damp, chilly morning with pickup trucks and trailers to look for bargains and farm implements. The auction and hauling away of generations of equipment and memories went on all day.

"Overall I'm relieved... and very pleased," George said when the last item was loaded and gone.

Trustee accuses supervisor of 'shadow campaign'

"I call for a moratorium on newsletters until after the election."

Questions about campaign tactics of Plymouth Township Supervisor Shannon Price prompted a loud and explosive response following the regular board of trustees meeting last week.

Police Chief Tom Tiderington was forced to step between the Price and Trustee Bob Doroshewitz to prevent the exchange of physical blows as the heated argument escalated immediately following the adjournment of the meeting, according to witnesses.

During the meeting, Doroshewitz had characterized the most recent township newsletter as a "nine-page infernal" and strongly questioned the propriety of a note on the township letterhead left by Price as he went door-to-door in township neighborhoods. He went on to criticize Price campaign signs posted at several polling places during the presidential primary election March 8, mentioning one installed outside Northridge Church, where he worships.

Price maintained during his comments that the board members had the opportunity to suggest changes to the newsletter prior to the printing. He accused Doroshewitz of "playing politics" at the meeting.

"In my view, it is shadow campaigning and if you were on the other side of the table you would certainly say it was inappropriate," Doroshewitz told Price. He implied that Price was using township taxpayers' funds to further his campaign efforts.

He said the newsletter page dedicated to a message from Treasurer Ron Edwards had "nothing to do with the treasurer's office and was pure campaigning."

"I call for a moratorium on newsletters until after the election," Doroshewitz said repeatedly.

Price cautioned Doroshewitz that he was "walking a very thin line" several times as the trustee continued to speak.

Apparently, Doroshewitz was reiterating complaints heard at township hall last week from voters who called to complain about the signs supporting Price at polling places.

Price was appointed to the supervisor's position last year and has yet to declare his candidacy for the office which will be on the August primary.

The signs supporting him, paid for by "The Committee to Elect Shannon Price" were in violation of the 100-foot rule, according to residents, which prohibits signs any closer to the polls. Voters also said the signs were in violation of the accepted 60-day campaign limit.

Volunteers sought for annual Rake N Go

Plymouth Community United Way (PCUW) needs volunteers to clean yards and do light chores in Plymouth, and Plymouth and Canton townships on Saturday, April 30 during the Rake N Go event.

Rake N Go is organized in partnership with Plymouth Community Council on Aging, and Comcast Cares Day to help senior citizens and those with disabilities with yard care.

Volunteers will meet on the day of the event at Plymouth First United Methodist Church for a continental breakfast and instructions.

Check in time is 8:30 a.m. Volunteers are asked to bring rakes, garden tools and gloves, and have their own transportation to travel between homes. United Way will supply the yard waste bags which will be distributed at the church.

Leaf blowers are a great help with larger yards, according to a spokesperson.

All ages are welcome, but those younger than 18 need to be accompanied by an adult.

To volunteer, call Randi Williams at (734) 453-6879, ext. 7 or e-mail randi.williams@pcuwmich.org by April 15.

Low-income seniors, 65 and older, who feel they may qualify for service should also contact Williams at the same number. Income verification will be required.

Honored

Sgt. Mark Hoffman, left, of the Plymouth Township Police Department was honored as Police Officer of the Year at a recent board of trustees meeting and was formally promoted to lieutenant by Police Chief Tom Tiderington. Tiderington praised Hoffman, a township resident, for his distinguished service during the past 17 years, serving in various assignments, such as evidence technician, detective and field training officer. Hoffman's wife, Michelle, and their son were on hand to pin on his bars as were his parents who traveled from upper Michigan. Hoffman's father served as a police lieutenant for 37 years before retirement. Photo by Dan Howard

Several individuals said Ordinance Enforcement Off. Kathy Humphrey told them she had spoken with township treasurer Ron Edwards who told her Price was within his rights as the signs didn't read "Vote" or "Elect" and were "informational only."

Price responded to Doroshewitz' comments noting that the newsletter also promoted both the police officer and firefighter of the year and other community news.

"You could have said that in two pages," Doroshewitz said.

As the board meeting adjourned, Price, obviously upset, abruptly interrupted a conversation between Doroshewitz and a reporter as the pair stood in the audience area. Witnesses said Price was shouting and used graphic expletives. He invaded Doroshewitz' personal space, witnesses said, forcing the trustee to back up several steps, prompting Doroshewitz to tell the supervisor to "back off," repeatedly.

Tiderington, alerted by the loud voices and alarmed audience members, approached the pair and stepped between them.

He escorted the two into a back room and said later that if "a punch had been thrown" he would "certainly have made an arrest."

Doroshewitz said that he did not feel threatened because the police chief was on hand but had the altercation occurred elsewhere, he would have had concerns for his safety.

Kurt L. Heise, the current state representative from the 20th District, has already formally declared his candidacy for the supervisor's position.

He said in a prepared statement that Price's misconduct should result in censure by the board as soon as possible.

"In my 25 years in local, county, and state government, I have never seen the CEO of a municipality engage in such obscene and thugish behavior toward another elected official," he said.

"Price clearly lacks the temperament and maturity for this important job, and has brought more shame and embarrassment to the Plymouth community."

Kellogg Park fountain redesign is unveiled

Plans for a new Kellogg Park fountain in downtown Plymouth were presented to members of the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) at a meeting last month.

According to a spokesman, the DDA is embarking on a major project to make upgrades to both the park and the fountain. "This is a DDA led project with the hope of having the upgrades completed by July 2017, in time for the city's 150th anniversary," he said in a prepared statement.

The DDA, in cooperation with the Wilcox Foundation, is funding the initial design concepts and has previously accepted proposals from a number of firms. Members of the DDA selected the design team from Russell Designs of Northville and WESCO Fountains of Florida to begin the conceptual designs for the project, which is expected to cost $1 million.

Funding for the improvements and the new fountain will be raised through private and community funding, according to the statement.

The preliminary designs were revealed at the Feb. 29 meeting and the input of the public along with comments regarding the plans is being sought. The plans can be found at <http://downtownplymouth.org/DocumentCenter/View/330>

Until final designs are approved, the Plymouth Downtown Development Authority and City of Plymouth will continue to seek public input. Questions or more information about the project is available at the DDA office at (734) 455-1453 or by email at www.dad@cityplymouth.mt.us.

Inkster to receive 'distressed' grant

Inkster is among 11 Michigan communities that will receive a share of a $5.4 million state grant program that can help fund special projects.

The Michigan Department of Treasury recently announced that the 11 financially distressed communities would be receiving funds from the Financially Distressed Cities, Villages, and Townships grant program.

Gov. Rick Snyder said in a statement the money "will go a long way to ensure these cities can improve the public services their residents expect and deserve."

Communities getting money include Allen Park, Benton Harbor, Ecorse, Hamtramck, Highland Park, Inkster, Lincoln Park, Melvindale, River Rouge and Wayne.

Inkster, the funding is designated for improvements to police department and public safety equipment and personnel.

Marshmallow Drop planned for tomorrow

The Easter Bunny will drop more than 20,000 marshmallows onto waiting children at 11 a.m. tomorrow, March 25.

Wayne County Parks officials expect thousands of children at the 32nd Annual Marshmallow Drop which will feature a helicopter visit from the Easter Bunny and the drop of the marshmallows. Children usually race to pick up as many marshmallows as possible that later can be redeemed for a prize.

The lucky child who finds the single colored marshmallow will receive a special prize, officials said.

Participating children will be separated in three age categories: 4-years-old and younger, 5-7 years old and 8-12 years old, to ensure each child receives a fair opportunity to find a colored marshmallow in the bunch. In 2015, nearly 5,000 children participated in the Marshmallow Drop event.

"Wayne County's Marshmallow Drop has been a cherished family tradition for 32 years," said Wayne County Executive Warren C. Evans. "The Marshmallow Drop kicks off a highly-anticipated season of fun activities for our Parks Division and we hope that residents and visitors will join us because it really is an exciting time for the entire family to enjoy."

Pre-registration is not required for this free event.

The Wayne County Parks

Marshmallow Drop is sponsored by Trenton Parks and Recreation, ITC Holdings, Flagstar Bank, Taylor Ford, KSP Insurance, SafeSplash Swim School, Wayne County Community College, Zeal
