Detroit attorneys deny land talks

Don Howard
Staff Writer

Attorneys for the City of Detroit have expressed their frustration with attempts to reach some agreement with Plymouth Township officials in an ongoing land dispute.

"I think it's time to re-evaluate our legal options," stated Deputy Corporate Counsel for Detroit Chuck Raini last week, following a decision by the Michigan Supreme Court favoring Detroit and denying the appeal of the township in the controversy.

Raini adamantly denied that any negotiation was ongoing between Detroit and Plymouth Township regarding a settlement of taxes paid on land purchased by the township.

The City of Detroit and the township have been battling for several years about the erroneous tax sale of a 190-acre piece of property that was once the site of the Detroit House of Corrections Prison Farm. Detroit has owned the land for nearly 100 years but when a portion of the property was sold to a local developer, the property split was not correctly recorded and tax bills for the entire 323 acres sent to the developer who never paid any taxes on any portion of the land.

Plymouth Township then notified Wayne County of the unpaid taxes on the parcel of land and, based on that information, county officials sent delinquent tax notices and then ultimately foreclosed on the land. Following the foreclosure, the county treasurer offered the entire 323-acre parcel of land at a tax sale and it was purchased by Plymouth Township, the entity which initially reported the delinquency.

"Cox doesn't return calls.
All we get are insults.
It's time we reassess our legal options."

The township paid $606,000 in 2011 for the land and has paid property taxes of about $102,000 on the property since that time.

The City of Detroit subsequently sued the township for return of the 190-acre section erroneously secured, noting that tax notices were sent to an incorrect address and that municipally-owned land is exempt from foreclosure proceedings under state law.

In 2015, Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Robert Colombo ruled in favor of the city and ordered the township to immediately return the property to the rightful owner. The

Wayne man charged in Eloise fire

One teen has pleaded guilty and another faces charges in the fire which gutted the former bakery on the Eloise property March 30.

Trevor Bauer, 18, of Wayne entered a guilty plea to third-degree arson charges and admitted he set the fire that destroyed the building in a hearing before Wayne County Circuit Court Judge James Chylinksi last week. He also pleaded guilty to possession of burglary tools.

A 16-year-old boy from Westland is also charged in the fire, but his name is not being released due to his status as a juvenile.

Chylinksi continued the $10,000 or 10 percent bond for Bauer during the hearing. His sentencing is set for May 25.

Wayne-Westland firefighters were assisted by Garden City and Inkster firefighters in battling the blaze. The building, which formerly served as the bakery at the city-like complex, was completely destroyed. Firefighters had difficulty accessing the property due to a fence and found that the floor of the second story of the building was ready to collapse when they arrived at the scene at about 2 p.m. March 30, according to official reports of the incident. Firefighters suspected that the fire was set on the second floor and flames were already coming through the roof when they arrived.

The 180-acre property is owned by Wayne County and the complex has been offered for sale at $1.5 million excluding the buildings that house the Wayne County Family Center, the Wayne County Sheriff Road Patrol Division and a Wayne County Clerk satellite office.

Westland City Hall wins project award

The new Westland City Hall has been selected as one of the National Public Works Projects of the Year by the American Public Works Association (APWA). The project also received the local and state award from the association.

The Public Works Project of the Year Award was established to promote excellence in the management and administration of public works projects by recognizing the alliance between the managing agency, the consultant/architect/ engineer, and the contractor who, working together, complete public works projects, according to a prepared statement from the city.

This year the Westland City Hall won the APWA, Distinguished Branch, Structural Project of the Year Award for projects between $5-$25 million dollars. The city hall nomination drew on the innovation of taking a blighted big box store in the middle of the "Shop and Dine" district and renovating it to create a modern, energy-efficient city hall. This retrofit saved a significant portion of the 64,000 square-foot commercial building from being land filled and solved a decades-old problem of replacing the former undersized city hall.

This green-mindedness along with features incorporated into the design by OHM Advisors which included installing window walls along the length of the southern wall, along with skylights and self-extinguishing lights gained high marks from the judge-ing panel. The new, larger city hall replaced the former cramped 13,300 square foot building which served the City of Westland since 1996. This allowed many of the city departments to be joined at one location, providing the convenience to residents of a "one-stop shop". Officials evaluated several alternative locations, but none were as cost-effective or allowed for the retrofitting of a defunct building into a green infrastructure functional facility.

The city hall nomination will now proceed to compete at the APWA state level and possibly the APWA national level.

"Westland's City Hall project has received acclaim and awards for multiple organizations," commented Mayor William Wild. "The APWA has awarded the Westland City Hall project with this award at the local, state and now national level. It has strengthened the city's profile as one of Southeast Michigan's leading innovative and environmentally conscientious cities."

After the injury, the victim was able to transport himself to the hospital where he was listed in stable condition, according to police reports. He was unable to provide detectives with information regarding a suspect in the shooting during his initial interview, officers said.

Anyone with any information regarding the shooting has been asked by detectives to contact the Michigan State Police at 855-642-4347 or Crime Stoppers at 800-775-2576.

Plymouth businesses protest 'lack of forethought'

More than 20 businesses signed a letter presented to members of the Plymouth Liquor License Review Committee last week, citing a "lack of forethought" in the approval of new businesses in the city.

The letter came as the commission is in the process of allowing one more new liquor license in the downtown area of the city, going from 14 to 15, and two businesses, one new and one established, both petition for permission to serve alcohol by the class.

The new "revised alcohol management ordinance" includes the decision to increase the number of licenses in downtown Plymouth.

Bob Ostendorf of Stella's Black Dog Tavern told the commissioners that the real issue is parking. He said that the owners feel that they are all losing business because of the lack of parking in the downtown area.

Owners of the nearby completed new Western Market in the former post office on Penman Street have requested a permit to sell alcohol at the 10-seat restaurant included in the new business. Western has included more on-site parking in the plans than is required by the city.

Committee member Colleen Pabur told the business owners that parking was a consideration in all the approvals the new Western Market had been granted. The committee members also explained that several attempts have been made to increase parking, include the purchase of the property at the corner of Ann Arbor Trail at Door Street which now offers 40 free public parking spots.

Mayor Dan Dwyer, also a member of the committee, said that the parking situation is the most challenging issue with which he has dealt. Dwyer agreed with the business owners who attended the meeting that their input into the parking problem before any changes were made to the current limit would be welcome.

While the members of the committee approved the draft of the new alcohol management ordinance, the liquor license request from the new business remained tabled.

Greek Islands Coney Island, a business that has been established in downtown for several years, has repeatedly applied to the committee for such a license but has been turned down due to the 14-licence limit.

Land

township appealed that ruling and was again unsuccessful with the Michigan Court of Appeals, a three-judge panel, who upheld Columbus's ruling and the Detroit position in January.

The township then hired former Michigan State Attorney General Mike Cox who persuaded the Township Board of Trustees to take the issue to the Michigan Supreme Court in an effort to "continue negotiations" with attorneys for Detroit and Wayne County regarding the taxes paid by a 32-vote of the board members in March. Last week, the Michigan Supreme Court denied that brief to appeal, ruling in favor of Detroit.

Attorneys for Wayne County adamantly deny the reported claims of township officials that negotiations for a settlement on the taxes the township paid on the land are under way.

Chief Assistant Wayne County Corporation Counsel Jacob Ghanaman said the county relied completely on information received from Plymouth Township regarding the foreclosure proceedings and has no liability or legal exposure in the situation.

Ghanaman said Friday that there are no negotiations taking place regarding the property. He said that while the county was previously facilitating negotiations between attorneys for the city and the township, he knows of no such continuing negotiations at this time.

"No—we're pretty much done," Ghanaman said this week.

"We gave a recommendation as to what both sides needed to do, that is the city and the township. It's Detroit's property and a tax adjustment needs to be made between those two parties," he said.

"But, I don't know of any negotiations; you might want to talk to Mike Cox," Ghanaman remarked.

Rainai, too, was adamant that there are no ongoing negotiations with township officials.

"We have tried to negotiate with the township over and over since 2012," Rainai said. "The township officials don't return calls. Cox doesn't return calls. All we get are insults. It's time we reassess our legal options," he said.

During a special board meeting in March, Township Supervisor Shannon Price told board members that the township would be walking away from more than $230,000 if no further appeal of the court decisions were authorized.

"Wouldn't you bet $75,000 to get $230,000?" Price said after the special board meeting in March, referring to the estimate provided by the Cox law firm to create the brief to request a motion to appeal to the Supreme Court. Those fees are now estimated at $87,000.

The original $666,000 the township paid for the land, the estimated back taxes and legal fees to date, the township has invested about $800,000 for 133 acres of land, 77 of which are unbuildable.

Area clinic doctor charged

A doctor at Canton Urgent Care on Ford Road is facing nearly 30 years in prison if convicted of multiple felonies related to Medicare and insurance fraud.

Dr. Bassel Altantawi, 45, the only doctor at the facility, is accused of repeatedly billing Medicaid and Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan for services he allegedly did not provide to patients, according to a statement from Michigan Attorney General Bill Schuette.

Canton Township Police officials contacted the Health Care Fraud Division of Schuette's office following a tip officers received regarding Altantawi, a resident of Farmington Hills.

"We will continue to identify and prosecute individuals who prey on the elderly who waste limited health-care dollars by fraudulently seeking payment for services they never provided," Schuette said in the statement. "Michigan residents should feel confident that when they see a physician, they receive honest, quality care and accurate billing based on the services provided to them by a physician."

Altantawi was charged in East Lansing District Court last week by attorneys from Schuette's office and arraigned before Judge Richard Ball on charges including nine counts of Medicaid Fraud, punishable by up to 4 years in prison, and a fine of $50,000; 12 counts of Health Care Fraud, punishable by up to 4 years in prison, and/or a fine of $50,000, and one count of Continuing Criminal Enterprise, punishable by up to 20 years in prison, and/or a fine of not more than $100,000.

Ball released the doctor on a $25,000 personal recognizance bond. Schuette urged patients seen by Altantawi who suspect they may have been billed for services that were not provided call the fraud division at hotline at 1-800-24-ABUSE.
