Judge halts sale of disputed property

Plymouth Township will not be selling the 190-acre parcel of land that was once home to the Detroit House of Corrections purchased at a Wayne County tax foreclosure sale.

Wayne County Circuit Court Chief Judge Robert J. Colombo, Jr. granted a restraining order against the township last Friday requested by attorneys for the City of Detroit, who claimed in court filings that the sale was improper and illegal.

Attorneys representing Detroit said they were prompted to file the motions requesting legal sanctions by news that township officials planned to sell the land against which Detroit has an unresolved legal claim of ownership. The hearing in front of Colombo involved Wayne County, Wayne County Treasurer Raymond Wojtowicz and attorneys and officials from Plymouth Township.

Columbo will also preside at a pending case in the Michigan Court of Claims demanding damages by the City of Detroit resulting from the same land sale. That case is scheduled to be heard by the end of this month.

Township attorneys and board officials alike were adamant the township had a right to sell the land they acquired from Wayne County in a tax foreclosure sale in 2011. The township paid about $606,149 for the land, assessed at one time for more than $15 million.

Plymouth Township attorney Timothy

Cronin denied township officials were trying to sell the disputed property and stated in court, "The township is interested in all the options...It's not an offer for sale."

Earlier this week, however, Plymouth Township Supervisor Richard Reaume met with a delegation from the Chinese Association of Automobile Manufacturers after launching an advertising campaign for the entire 323-acre prison farm property, located west of Ridge Road. A newspaper advertisement placed recently by the township stated the township was seeking prospective developers and offers of an acquisition proposal.

In the advertisement, township officials said there would be "legal challenges," stating, "Plymouth Township purchased the property on September 22, 2011 as part of a Wayne County foreclosure process." The City of

Romulus ratifies new employee union contract

The City of Romulus has a new four-year agreement with its local 214 Teamsters Union that will save money for the city and still protect employees.

Members of the city council unanimously ratified the agreement, which is effective from July 2014 to July 2018, last week.

Mayor LeRoy Burcroff said the first major contract he helped negotiate as mayor was relatively free of contention.

"The talks were open and honest," he said. "They shared the things that were important to their membership, and we shared the proposed changes. That's the way it should be."

Both the union and the city gave a number of concessions, according to Council President John Barden.

Under the agreement, current employees will contribute 10 percent toward their healthcare premiums and new employees will contribute 20 percent. The city will be allowed to hire part time, seasonal, interns or co-op employees to help save funds and contract out some services.

The city will reduce the number of unpaid furlough days from 13 to six. Rather than a defined raise in each year of the deal, employees will get a flat $1,100 bonus for the first three years of the agreement and no bonus in the fourth year.

"I think it's one of the best contracts I've ever negotiated," said Kathy Ritter, a member of the union negotiating team. "I'm very happy with it."

The Teamsters Local 214 represents the city department of public works, the building department and clerical employees.

Candidates discuss issues at Republican forum

Funding for schools and roads, the future of the Detroit Water and Sewer Department and the state of Wayne County finances were among the topics last week at a candidate forum hosted by the Canton Republican Caucus.

The informal group brought together state and local leaders, including Canton Supervisor Phil LaJoy, Wayne County Commissioner Shannon Price (R-Canton), State Sen. Patrick Colbeck (R-Canton) and Mike Maloney, a member of the Plymouth-Canton Community School (PCCS) board. Carol Ann Fausone, a candidate for the state house district that represents Canton, also took part.

LaJoy talked about an issue on the ballot asking voters to replace the Personal Property Tax with a different sort of taxing system that would generate roughly the same amount of revenue, but be more reliable and business friendly. The current system, he said, amounts to a double tax on businesses—they are taxed when they purchase equipment and also taxed each year according to the value of it and does not put Michigan in a competitive business environment.

The state has tried to do away with the personal property tax in the past, but local officials have not supported the bill because of the hit to local revenue streams. This version, he said, makes local governments whole. He said he hopes voters approve it, but was concerned because the language on

School board privatizes district custodial services

Members of the Plymouth Canton Community Schools Board of Education voted to move the custodial work in the district to a private firm last week.

The 5-2 vote came after several protests from some of the 68 district employees impacted by the decision. Many of them recounted for the board members their experiences with Grand Rapids Building Services, Inc. the successful bidder for the 3-year contract.

Current custodial employees also reminded the board members that they had, through their unions, given back $1 million in wages and benefits during the past two years, reduced staff and sacrificed 17 unpaid days.

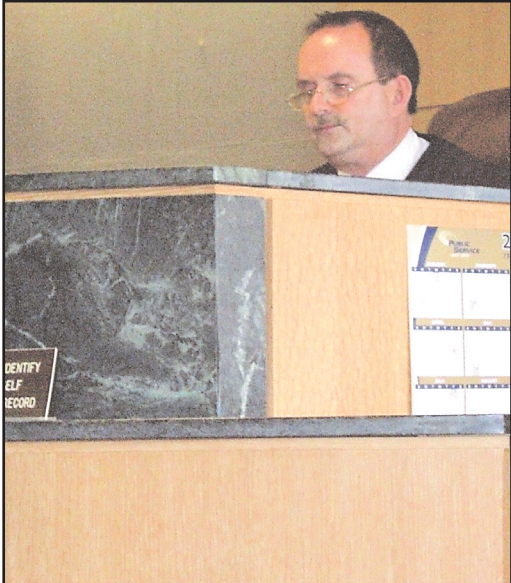

School officials said the move would save the district between $600,000-$700,000 the first year.

Officials said that current employees, all of whom will be terminated, would have the opportunity to apply for jobs with Grand Rapids Building Services, Inc. Officials said that the private company will allow for more custodial workers in the district than the current number employed by the district and provide about 30,000 more man hours or the equivalent of about 11 more full-time employees performing custodial work in the school buildings.

The no votes on the privatization were cast by school board president Judy Mardigian and secretary Kim Crouch.

Detroit claim was referenced along with the Affidavit Affecting Real Property filed by Detroit attorneys for 190 of the total 323 acres.

Justin Robinson, director of business attraction for the Detroit Regional Chamber of Commerce, confirmed Reaume and Michael Liu, chairman of the Chinese real estate development firm, Third Wave Group, met last week and discussed the proposed development during a three-day Detroit conference. Liu is quoted as saying he is working to develop a manufacturing park in Plymouth Township.

The court hearing Friday was also attended by Plymouth Township resident Richard Sharland and belatedly by Plymouth Township Clerk Nancy Conzelman, who arrived five minutes before adjournment.

It was Sharland's persistent questions and Freedom of Information Act inquiries about the propriety of the tax foreclosure sale of the 190 acres that prompted Detroit attorneys to sue the township last year to reclaim the prison land and seek financial redress through the court.

Sharland said he still believes the property was stolen from the City of Detroit.

Before the hearing, Cronin said he thought Wayne County was “only marginally interested in this (case).”

During the hearing, however, attorney for Wayne County Jacob Granham testified, “Representation was that it (the property) was a single parcel at the time of the sale.” He testified further that county officials, “acted on information given to them by the township,” to which Colombo responded, “I’m very interested to hear what the treasurer has to say...” referring to Wayne County Treasurer Raymond J. Wojtowicz, who was named as a defendant in the lawsuit along with Plymouth Township.

Colombo first granted a motion allowing the Detroit lawsuit to be reopened, based on the fact all parties had no opposition. Cronin's subsequent request for more time for “discovery” was denied and the court allowed Detroit attorneys 90 days in which to re-file their case. Detroit Deputy Court Counsel Chuck Raimi said the city legal team intends to re-file as soon possible.

Raimi told the court, “The township (Plymouth) had an obligation to do a lot split...and they didn't address the legal authority. The City of Detroit is the owner of this property.”

Last year, attorneys for the City of Detroit were forced to withdraw their request for a hearing in the Wayne County Court filed against Plymouth Township and Wayne County demanding the return of the land.

The withdrawal was based on the relationship of Plymouth Township with the law firm Miller-Canfield, the same firm chosen by the City of Detroit officials to represent the municipality in the city bankruptcy filing. The purchase order drawn up by then Plymouth Township Trustee Steve Mann was presented to the board of trustees by Township Treasurer Ron Edwards. Mann was, at the time, an attorney working for the Miller-Canfield firm.

Detroit attorneys have been working to lift a stay of proceedings granted by Circuit Judge Maria Oxholm last November; after Cronin's claim there was a conflict of interest.

“A lot of times, when ballot language is confusing, it equates to a ‘no’ vote,” LaJoy said.

Price talked about the Deficit Elimination Plan at the county level that could, if “all the stars aligned,” eliminate the current $175 million deficit facing Wayne County and replace it with a modest fund balance by the end of the 2015 fiscal year.

The plan would involve taking more than $80 million from the county tax revolving fund-which is made up of funds collected for tax-reverted properties-to cut down the initial debt, selling the downriver waste water treatment plant and getting union concessions to reduce legacy costs and operational deficits going forward. A lot of circumstances would have to go right for it to work, he said, but he thought it was doable.

“It would be a dramatic turnaround to go from a $175 million deficit to a fund balance in two years,” he said.

Price also discussed the possibility of forming a suburban water authority to oversee the Detroit Water and Sewer Department.

Those negotiations have been difficult and ongoing, he said, and complicated by the historic bankruptcy filed by the City of Detroit. Price said the goal was to get more suburban representation on the board and control rate increases.

“If we can’t cap increases at 4 percent, it’s a bad deal and we don’t want it,” Price said.

Colbeck discussed school and road funding, pointing out that during his four years in office, the legislature has increased the per-pupil foundation allowance for the Plymouth Canton Community Schools. Those budget issues stem from a declining enrollment, increasing costs and the perceived budget hit when the federal stimulus funds dried up just before he took office.

“You can’t say we haven’t made education a priority,” said Colbeck. “We’ve increased funding, overall, through additional money to the K-12 system.”

Maloney agreed, in part, saying the district has lost more than 1,500 students through the past several years. In spite of that, he said, the board has not taken cuts far enough.

“We’re a much smaller district than we used to be, and that trend will continue,” Maloney said. “Our current financial trajectory is just not sustainable.

Canton OKs equality ordinance

With a thunderous round of applause, the Canton Township Board of Trustees adopted an ordinance last week designed to offer protection to people who believe they have been discriminated against.

Called the Equal Rights Ordinance, it was suggested by Trustee Steve Sneiderman and approved by a 6-1 margin last Tuesday, with Tom Yack voting against the motion.

The ordinance would provide an avenue of relief for residents and visitors to the township who believe they are being discriminated against with respect to housing, public accommodation, employment or other circumstances, based on the individuals’ real or perceived race, national origin, sex, color, limitation, sexual orientation, gender identity or HIV status.

The board room, crowded with equal rights supporters from throughout metro Detroit, erupted into applause when the votes were cast.

Yack said he voted against it because he thought it was a state issue, but several speakers disagreed.

“Stand up and be leaders, and not wait for someone else to lead,” said Tina Terrill, a Canton resident.

“Don’t wait for the state to do it. Do it now. We need it now.”

Mark Bonekowski, a Farmington Hills resident, agreed, saying there was no guarantee the state would act and that Canton was large enough to provide a compelling example.

“You’re a big township. Take the lead,” he said. “Ronald Reagan would have done it.”

Under the ordinance, people who believe they have faced discrimination would contact the township. The township has the authority to help the two sides reach a conciliatory agreement and, if that fails, issue a citation for a civil infraction.

Wayne - Westland

School board members OK 2014-15 budget

The 2014-15 budget adopted by members of the Wayne Westland Community Schools Board of Education will include a full range of programs for students.

In addition, the district will use only about $400,000 of fund equity to pay expenses, an amount that has been as high as $6 million in past years.

Officials predicated the budget on anticipatated revenue of $105 million with expenditures of $105.4 million. Most of the funds, about $82.8 million will come from state school aid which is expected to increase to a minimum of $7,187 per student.

The district is also anticipating $7 in state funding to pay employee retirement costs. With a state limit of 25 percent of payroll allowed for retirement expenses, the state funds will close the gap between the state limit and the actual cost of about 33.99 percent for next year.

The budget also includes a loss of 50 students and a continuing decline in local property tax revenue. Last year, the property tax reduction was 8 percent, against a 3.1 percent drop expected in 2014-15. The district expects about $15.5 million in local tax revenue this year.

That property value decline will increase the district debt levy to 5.46 mills, up from 5.26 mills.

Officials said that five staff positions will be lost in 2014-15. Eighteen teachers are retiring and many of the 11 teachers who were sent pink slips are expected to be recalled.

Senior Olympics fees set

Senior citizens from 16 communities will be participating and celebrating the 10th Anniversary of the Western Wayne County Senior Olympics this summer.

This week of athletic competitions begins on Monday, Aug. 18 and includes more than 30 events throughout the week. Each community will host at least one event. The registration fee is $6 (includes a t-shirt, Opening Day ceremonies and a healthy breakfast).

Entry fees for most events are $3 each with the exception of bowling which is $6 and includes ball, shoes and lunch and golf which is $15 and includes nine holes, cart and lunch. An Awards Banquet, Medal Presentation and Vendor Expo ($15) will take place Friday, Aug. 22 at Burton Manor.

An informational brochure, with days and times, plus event rules will be given to each individual at the time of registration which is available at local senior centers. Registrations must be turned in by Thursday, July 3. Wayne seniors can register at the Senior Services Office located in the Wayne Community Center at Howe and Annapolis.

Earth Day efforts continue throughout Romulus

Earth Day may have been celebrated last month, but officials and employees in the City of Romulus have found ways to continue to apply “green” concepts.

Romulus demonstrated support for environmental protection on April 22, the actual date of Earth Day with the planting of trees outside the Department of Public Services building at 12600 Wayne Road. The trees were provided by WH Canon Co. and planted by employees from the Romulus landscaping business at no cost to the city. Economic Development Director Timothy Keyes said the trees were part of a landscaping requirement of Verizon and Sprint related to cell towers in the city. The companies hired WH Canon to do the work, which coincided with Earth Day.

Community Outreach Director Jazmine Danci led story time presentations about recycling at the Romulus Public Library. She read The Earth Book by Todd Parr and The Three R's by Nuria Roca. The group sang two songs about recycling, did an “Earth Day craft” using coffee filters and markers and got creative on some Earth Day coloring pages.

The monthly “Spotlight on Romulus” show on the city cable TV channel on Comcast focused on Earth Day. In addition, the theme of this month's display case at city hall featured environmental tips and other earth-friendly information.

Employees at city offices expanded the amount of recycled materials from paper and cardboard to everything that is collected in the curbside recycling program. The items now include glass, plastic containers, cans, newspapers and more. Waste Management picks up items from city offices once a week instead of once a month, which is the former schedule.

City employees have implemented State of Michigan-approved standards for cleaning products. Danci said employees will use concentrated cleaning products and will reuse the bottle containers. They also encourage residents and business people in the city to follow suit.

The “green” efforts continue to expand. In recent days, the Romulus Fire Department, under the leadership of Deputy Chief Kevin Krause and with assistance from Lt. Michael Wojtylko Jr., Lt. Doug Rowe and Firefighters Jason Pittman, Aaron Ladach and Gerald McDiarmid, began gardening at Fire Station 4. Krause said the firefighters were provided materials to create boxed gardens and seeds to grow the vegetables and herbs that were donated by Block's Stand and Greenhouse. Firefighters can use the fresh vegetables to cook daily meals at the station.
