Parades mark Independence Day

American Memories is theme in downtown Northville

Participants in the Northville Community Foundation Independence Day Parade will be making some American Memories when they step off from the corner of Griswold and Main Street at 10 a.m. Saturday.

The 75 or so entries will include dignitaries, marching bands, entertainers, drummers, antique automobiles, the traditional pet parade, floats and a special parade of decorated bicycles. There will be vintage cars, veterans groups, fire trucks and floats from various churches, businesses and community groups marching the mile and a half parade route to the cheering of about 20,000 or so folks who come to downtown Northville every year just to see the parade.

The theme of the parade this year, American Memories, will be prevalent on all the entries, explained Foundation Executive Director Jessica Striegle, who noted that it takes months of planning and weeks of work by the volunteer committee to make sure that the parade comes off perfectly. The Northville Community Foundation has been presenting, organizing and directing the event for the past 15 years. This year, Striegle followed the blueprint of former Director Shari Peters who retired earlier this year, and has kept to the winning formula that has made the Northville parade one of the most popular throughout the area.

“Many people don’t even realize that it is the Foundation that sponsors and organizes the parade,” Striegle said.

Even before the foundation took on the task, Northville was known for some very special attractions in the parade.

Dr. William Demray, who has been emceeding the parade for the foundation along with radio personality Lisa Berry for the past 10 years, remembers when the parade first began and one local businessman hired elephants from out of state to march down the middle of Main Street.

Plymouth marks final march of briefcase drill team

The Kiwanis Good Morning U.S.A. Parade in downtown Plymouth will mark the final appearance of the Fred Hill Briefcase Drill Team, a community tradition for more than 30 years. The besuited, briefcase-carrying team, last seen in the Detroit Thanksgiving Day Parade, will perform for the last time in the July 4 parade down Main Street in Plymouth.

Plymouth attorney Scott Kappler, a member of the drill team, led the organizational efforts for the parade this year and said that it had been part of Hill’s life for more than 30 years and that many are sad to see it end. Hill also organized the Plymouth parade for many years and Kappler worked with him on the task for about 5 years. Kappler organized the event before Hill took over and is now back on the volunteer job.

“I don’t know why I said I would do it, but I am loving every minute of it,” Kappler said.

There will be 80 entries in the parade this year marching to the theme of Dream Big, including the Briefcase Drill Team, five marching bands and two Fife and Drum-type groups, clowns and other entertainers, Kappler said.

“We can truly call ourselves an international parade because one of the marching bands is from Windsor,” he said.

The parade will start down Main Street from Theodore at the railroad tracks and travel about a mile and a half to Hartsough, Kappler said. It takes about 35 minutes, he estimated.

This year, Kappler said, U.S. Senator Debbie Stabenow will be marching in the parade as will a special delegation of about 10 World War II veterans.

“That’s an unusually large contingent of vets,” Kappler said, “most of whom are from the community.”

“This event could not happen without the sponsors and the help of the city,” he said, “not to mention the volunteers who spend so much time on it.”

Canton mourns passing of former treasurer

Former Canton Township Treasurer and Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Board of Education member Elaine Kirchgatter died June 25 in her Carmel, IN home.

Mrs. Kirchgatter, 74, succumbed to acute myeloid leukemia.

She and her husband, the late Richard Kirchgatter, were the parents of three daughters, June, Jill and Joy.

Mrs. Kirchgatter was involved in the former Plymouth Youth Symphony, 4-H, the Plymouth Community Arts Council and St. John’s Episcopal Church. She served on the Plymouth Canton Community Schools Board of Education and was the Canton Township Treasurer for 16 years. She opted not to seek reelection in 2008.

Public service came naturally to Mrs. Kirchgatter; her family said. As a child growing up near Rochester, N.Y., her father served on the local school board and her mother volunteered for many community organizations. She and her husband moved to Canton Township in the early ’60s where he opened his veterinary practice. Mr. Kirchgatter was active with the Canton Planning Commission, the Plymouth Rotary Club and the Canton Chamber of Commerce. He died of cancer in 2003.

Mrs. Kirchgatter moved to Indiana about a year ago to be close to her daughter and grandchildren. She had been in hospice care.

A family member said that the time and date for a memorial service for Mrs. Kirchgatter at St. John’s Episcopal Church in Plymouth would be announced at a later date.

Cremation rites will be accorded, according to the family.

County Mud Day is set for Tuesday in Westland

Wayne County Parks is set to transform the Hines Park-Nankin Mills area into a giant 75-foot by 150-foot mud pit playground next week.

From 11 a.m. until 1 p.m. next Tuesday, July 7, children, ages 12 and younger will have the opportunity to get down and dirty in one of the messiest playgrounds southeast Michigan has ever seen.

“Mud Day is the one day of year that kids can have fun in the mud” said Wayne County Executive Warren C. Evans. “Every child should experience Mud Day at least once,” Evans added.

Thousands of youngsters will charge into the mud at 11 a.m. Youngsters will be separated into age categories for events such as, “Mud Limbo” and wheelbarrow races. Also, the 2015 King and Queen of Mud will be crowned.

Children should wear old clothes and shoes and bring a clean change of clothes. There are no showers on-site, however; a clean-up area is available with hoses to aid in rinsing off the mud. Parents are also advised to bring a supply of towels. Plastic bags will be provided to ensure that all dirty clothes are properly contained for the trip home.

Kona Ice will be on hand to sell lunch items and flavored ice to the participants and their families.

The Hines Park -Nankin Mills Area is located on Hines Drive, east of Ann Arbor Trail in Westland. Sponsors for Mud Day include: ITC Holdings, Community Alliance Credit Union, UAW Region IA, Fox 2 News, Friends of Wayne County Parks and the Western Wayne County HMRT.

Lions Club presents annual scholarship award

Nathan Harris was recently awarded a $2,000 scholarship from the Canton Lions Club to help with his college education.

Each year, the Lions Club provides two scholarships for tuition, books or campus housing to a high school student entering an accredited trade or business school, college or university.

Harris, 19, a graduate of Plymouth High School, will be attending Concordia University in Ann Arbor this fall pursuing a degree in business and marketing. He will also be continuing his soccer and track participation at Concordia. He achieved All State honors in track last year for a 61/2 foot jump. Harris is also a member of DECA, Inc., a group that prepares emerging leaders and entrepreneurs in high school and college to compete in the business world. Harris competed at the state level of DECA in product design. He is the son of David and Dana Harris.

In awarding the Lions Club scholarships, preference is given to applicants who are sight or hearing challenged. Harris has a genetic hearing loss.

Lions Club President Robert Boyer said the club hopes to support youth whenever possible.

“Nathan Harris represents the best of the youth and we are extremely proud of what Nathan has accomplished in his academy endeavors. I think his future will be bright and he will lead others in and out of college to seek their full potential,” Boyer said during the presentation of the scholarship at Rose’s Restaurant in Canton last month. The ceremony was attended by Harris’ parents and siblings, Andrew, Tyler and Kathryn.

Parents question morale of Van Buren teachers

Members of the Van Buren Public Schools Board of Education were asked to justify and explain the resignation of eight new teachers and a popular school principal during a crowded meeting earlier this month.

Parents demanded that board members answer questions about morale among teachers in the district and offer an explanation for the resignation of Kelly Villa, the former principal of Savage Elementary School. Villa had been with the district for 19 years prior to her resignation. Parents also questioned the abrupt departures of eight teachers who had only been with the district for one or two years.

One board member, Sherry Frazier, suggested that Villa’s resignation was an effort to draw attention to the poor morale among district teachers.

Parents asked the board members for exit interviews with Villa to determine the reason for her departure. Frazier said that she not seen any recent exit interviews with departing employees although she had requested such information. Board President Brent Mikulski told Frazier and the audience that the administration office does keep records of the reasons employees leave the district.

The question of potential or ongoing employee lawsuits was broached by attorney Barbara Miller, a former member of the school board. She asked for a copy of the district policy regarding informing board members of lawsuits.

One parent, Richard Rytman, suggested a professional survey of teachers during which they could answer anonymously regarding conditions and morale of educators in the district. Rytman said that he would personally fund such a survey to provide the information necessary to make changes to improve morale. He claimed that there is a serious discrepancy between what Superintendent of Schools Michael Van Tassel and the members of the board are telling the public regarding conditions in the district and actual records. Rytman said that a 2014 report that rated the Van Buren Public School in the bottom 27th percentile in the state.

“What does this do for my home value?” he asked the board. He added that the low morale of teachers is impacting the quality of education students in the district receive.

Jane Champagne, the parent of a 7-year-old who attends Savage Elementary School, said she was pleased with the education her daughter was receiving but that she felt it was possible families would leave the district as a result of the resignation of Villa.

Champagne read a letter to the board from parents in the Gifted and Talented program at the school asking for an investigation by the board members into the reasons so many teachers are resigning. She also endorsed the survey Rytman suggested.

Mikulski suggested that the issue could be discussed at the next study session of the board scheduled in August. He said this would give the board time to collect information.

Frazier was not satisfied with his suggestion, however, and said she felt the board was minimizing staff morale. She suggested the board members take some action at the July meeting.

“How many people to we have to lose?” she asked. “She’s (Villa) a courageous lady who wanted to bring the focus to the point.”

No official action on the issue was taken.

NORTHVILLE - PLYMOUTH

Watchdog group confronts township supervisor

Plymouth Township Supervisor Shannon Price took more than an hour last week to answer critics during a meeting of the Plymouth Concerned Citizens group at the Plymouth District Library.

Price, who has been the object of much criticism both from members of the group and other residents, addressed many of the issues and answered questions from the 35 or so people in attendance. Following his introductory remarks, citizens asked him questions on a wide range of topics.

In response to a question about his moving to the township just weeks prior to being named supervisor last April, Price said that he didn't want to move before the county commission election. "I didn't want to give my opponent anything to talk about."

Many in attendance had questions or comments regarding the recent appointment of Mike Mitchell, Price's former aide during his tenure as a Wayne County commissioner, to a newly-created $60,000 position as Director of Parks and Grants in the township. The parks job requirements called for an individual with a four-year degree in engineering, a valid drivers license and the possession of "interpersonal and communication skills necessary to interact with the public, staff and outside agency personnel."

Mitchell and two other candidates were recently vetted and interviewed by Trustee Kay Arnold, Northville Township Manager Rick Snider and Township Human Resources Director JoAnn Coobitis. Observers commented that Price had pre-selected Mitchell for the job and that his qualifications did not meet the job description allegedly posted on the township website.

Price said that the parks director was a needed position as, "The treasurer (Ron Edwards) was doing double duty, working late at night. We asked who was in charge of the grants. The fire chief has grants sitting on his desk. It was the same process we used to get a building foreman."

Resident Chris Hunter asked Price why he was not more forthcoming about the new park director. "Your withholding gives the appearance of impropriety," Hunter said. His remarks were seconded by activist Brian Bentley who said the citizens know that Mitchell is treasurer of the Wayne County Conservative Political Action Committee, which donated a total of $14,800 to Price's campaign committee in 2012 and 2014.

"I never denied we were friends. When we posted the job he decided he wanted to apply. If you want to question integrity, you can also question Kay Arnold, Chip Snider and Coobitis."

State Rep. Kurt Heise, a Plymouth resident, asked Price if he was going to ask Mitchell to resign as the chairman of the 11th District Republican Committee.

"I don't tell him what to do after hours," Price said. "If it interferes with his work, we'll address it."

Resident and Republican Party precinct delegate Paul Garon asked Price, "How can you justify the golf course when they're constantly losing money?"

In response Price said that there was talk of building a new club house, adding a driving range and establishing new hours. He suggested that a partnership with a private operator could be something to consider at the facility which operates at a $50,000 to $100,000 annual loss.

Price said that there would be a survey regarding recreation in the township and the golf course and the proposed amphitheater would be part of that. He said the amphitheater plan would not go forward without citizen input.

Susan Bondie and Carol Leroue, leaders of the Plymouth Concerned Citizens group, voiced their concerns.

Bondie asked Price when a financial report on the golf course would be available. Price responded that the computer system is being converted from an old DOS system to a new operating method.

Leroue asked about the financial reports in the township, "We ask questions but we never get answers. I've been waiting for 10 years now and what we need is a forensic audit," she said. "How much money do we have in the bank?"

Price responded that he was meeting with vendors and considering the bidding of the township auditing services.

"I think we need to look at that when we bid out our auditing services."

Price also defended the recent awarding of the township rubbish hauling contract to a company whose owner donated to his campaign. Price responded that the Rizzo Environmental Services contract was the most financially sound for the township with the lowest rate increase.

"Rizzo is a half-million cheaper than the next-lowest vendor," Price said.

Price denied being opposed to the Plymouth Area Recreation Center, (PARC), the plan which will convert the former Central Middle School in downtown Plymouth to an arts and recreation complex.

He said he has met with Don Soenen, the leader of the PARC group, several times.

"I've got a lot of questions," he said, referring to a proposed millage to fund the PARC facility.

she couldn't agree more and has been coming to Northville for the parade for nearly two decades.

"I don't think I have missed one in 20 years," she said.

Not that the pair haven't had some interesting experiences as they narrate the passing floats and attractions.

"They love to spray us with water," Berry said. "Many of the floats or marchers have water guns or sprays, and often, by the end of the parade, we are drenched. Of course, when it is really warm, that's not so bad," she laughed.

The floats with fireworks, too, often determine that the best place to ignite the munitions is right in front of Demray and Berry.

"I know its coming and I still jump," Berry said.

The pair agreed that the hometown flavor of the Northville parade is something special.

"This parade really shows people there is real meaning to things like our Declaration of Independence," Demray said. "Everybody feels that spirit of patriotism."

Again this year, the major sponsor of the parade is St. Mary Mercy Hospital in Livonia.

In addition to the parade, the Northville Community Foundation, a registered 501 c 3 also manages, supports and operates Maybury Farm. Striegle said the Foundation exists for the purpose of enhancing and enriching life in the Northville community and southeast Michigan. The Foundation supports non-profits, educational programs, youth and senior programs, the performing arts and historical preservation in the community.

(A guide to the parade exhibits is included as a special insert in this edition of The Eagle.)

Romulus woman faces charges in boy's death

Kimberly Garrett of Romulus has been charged with second degree murder in the auto accident that took the life of an 8-year-old Westland boy.

Wayne County Prosecutor Kym Worthey amended the criminal charges following the death of the child, who had been on life support at a local hospital, June 24 of the injuries he suffered when struck by the car Garrett was driving on June 20.

According to police reports, Garrett, 39, was seen leaving the scene on Darwin Street near Delton in Westland after her car struck the boy who was riding his bike near his home. The witness said Garrett's car drove off the road into a ditch at about 8:24 p.m. and struck the child.

Garrett did not stop at the scene, according to police reports, and the witness called 911 and then followed Garrett to a home in the 8800 block of Cromwell in Romulus. Romulus officers arrested Garrett and subsequently turned her over to Westland Police.

A not-guilty plea was entered for Garrett during her arraignment in 18th District Court in Westland where she was charged with drunken driving causing a serious injury; one count of reckless driving causing serious impairment of a body function; one count of failure to stop at the scene of an accident resulting in serious impairment or death and a misdemeanor count of operating while intoxicated/second offense. She was arraigned on the amended charge of second degree murder, along with the other infractions, on Monday in the 18th District Court.

She remains in incarcerated in lieu of a $500,000 cash/surety bond while awaiting her next court appearance.

Illegal narcotics may also have been a factor in the incident, police said.

Inkster man charged with prostitution, slavery

Jahan Satati Green of Inkster is facing seven felony charges including human trafficking in what authorities have called a slavery operation.

Green, 38, is accused of forcing two women into six years of prostitution in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties. Prosecutors claim that he operated an online escort service and took the women, described as "young adults" to Detroit area hotels where they were forced to perform sex acts and collect money. Green is accused of forcing the women to then give the money to him, according to charges filed by Attorney General Bill Schuette's office.

Green was arrested and arraigned June 22 in 22nd District Court in Inkster on seven felony charges including human trafficking and conducting a criminal enterprise along with charges of forced labor involving commercial sex and prostitution by transporting a person and prostitution by accepting earnings.

If convicted, he faces penalties of 20 years imprisonment on each charge.

He was given a $500,000 cash bond and remains in the Wayne County Jail awaiting his next court hearing.

The charges were brought by the Human Trafficking Unit of the attorney general's office, which was created to work with local, state and federal law enforcement to prosecute such cases.

Human trafficking is the second-largest and fastest-growing criminal industry in the world, after drug trafficking, according to the release.

Teens accused of shooting woman's teeth

No decision has been made available as yet regarding the extradition to Florida of two Inkster brothers accused of shooting four people with a BB gun.

Reports of the incident allege that the boys, ages 12 and 16, were staying at the home of their grandmother at the Holly Hills complex near Daytona Beach in Florida when they intentionally shot out one woman's teeth and injured three others at the apartment complex swimming pool.

The boy's mother, reportedly brought the boys home to Inkster when she learned of their crimes rather than have them spend the remainder of the summer with their grandmother in Florida as had been planned.

According to police affidavits, the woman who was shot in the mouth on June 8 lost two teeth and also sustained a shoulder injury. Another victim, who was shot in the back, thought he sustained a "severe bee sting," and his wife was shot in the chest. Another woman bled after she was shot in the shoulder; according to reports from the Daytona newspaper.

Police said the boys aimed the BB gun from the window of their grandmother's apartment window. The boys admitted to police that they had touched the BB gun, but denied shooting at the victims, according to police.

The woman whose teeth were damaged reportedly does not have dental insurance coverage to repair her broken teeth, police reports indicated.

If returned to Florida, each of the boys faces charges of aggravated battery with a weapon, which is a felony, and simple assault, which is a misdemeanor.

One of the victims, Clifford Woods, told the Daytona Beach newspaper he thinks the boys should be charged.

"Maybe they can learn a lesson," said Woods, whose wife was also injured in the shooting. "Maybe they can get a wake-up call before something happens like they (end up) killing someone."

WAYNE - WESTLAND

Wayne extends deadline for manager job

Members of the Wayne City Council came to a quick decision after interviewing five candidates for the job of city manager: They need more time and a more comprehensive search for candidates.

Lisa Nocerini, a consultant on contract to the city for $4,000 a month, was recently appointed as interim city manager until an acceptable candidate can be hired.

Five candidates were interviewed last month by a committee including Mayor James Hawley and council members Skip Monit and Susan Rowe. Following their report to council regarding the interviews and qualifications of the candidates, they said that as a committee, they did not reach a conclusion regarding a candidate for the job.

Two candidates for the job, Inkster Fire Operations Officer John Adams and Belleville Mayor Kareen Conley were in attendance at the meeting and Rowe asked if they could speak to the council members regarding their credentials and qualifications. That suggestion was rejected by Hawley who said the city needed “to be careful.”

Monit noted that the committee members were not rejecting the candidates who had been interviewed, only that they felt they would like to see more applicants for the job. The city only accepted applications for one week. A subsequent advertisement in the Michigan Municipal League and the International City Managers Association lists a deadline of July 16. Applicants must have a bachelor's degree with a master's degree preferred in public administration or business administration, 10 years of success as a senior-level executive in a public sector organization with a council/manager structure.

Council members opted to keep Nocerini in place while they seek other candidates for the job.

Hawley said that Nocerini is “doing a great job.” He added that hiring a city manager may take more time than originally anticipated.

- Summer Madison, a John Glenn High graduate and daughter of Ron and Sally Madison, who plans to study study occupational therapy at Eastern Michigan University.

Her award was presented in memory of Arlene Douglass, a Wayne-Westland Elementary teacher, by her husband, Don Douglass.

- Dazon Adams-Chambers, a Tinkham Alternative High School graduate and son of Madelyn Chambers who will pursue a nursing degree at Henry Ford Community College.

McConnell introduced each winner with a brief account of their school and job activities and their accomplishments.

John Glenn High School principal David Ingham said that the class of 2015 is “just a great group of kids.”

Friends and family members joined the Rotarians and students during the presentation.

Canton cops serve coffee

The Canton Police Department has scheduled Coffee with a Cop from 9-11 a.m. July 17 at Village Coney Island, 47182 Michigan Ave.

These on-going sessions are open to the public and provide a unique opportunity for community members to ask questions and learn more about the department's work in Canton's neighborhoods and business districts.

The majority of contacts law enforcement has with the public happen during emergencies or stressful situations. Those situations are not always the most effective times for relationship building. Coffee with a Cop breaks down barriers and allows for relaxed one-on-one interaction. The Canton Police Department is holding multiple sessions throughout the community this year. If you have a business or organization interested in hosting a 2-hour session of Coffee with a Cop, contact the police department at (734) 394-5401.

Requirements to host a 2-hour session of Coffee with a Cop include having a Canton location, being open to the public and providing coffee for attendees.
