Contamination suspected at fire site

Concerns about possible toxic exposure have prompted local fire department officials to order testing of firefighters gear for carcinogens after a fire last Wednesday at a DTE Energy sub-station next door to the Plymouth Cultural Center on Farmer Street.

The gear will be tested for polychlorinated biphenyls (PCB) which the Environmental Protection Agency has classified as a probable human carcinogen.

The fire left 4,000 city residents and businesses without power, some only restored in the early morning hours Friday as DTE crews worked round-the-clock. Power to downtown businesses on both Main and Forest streets was interrupted until Friday morning, grinding downtown business to a standstill.

Firefighters from Northville, Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Northville Township, including a Western Wayne County Fire Department Haz-Mat team, were dispatched about 8:30 p.m. Sept. 16, after numerous callers reported hearing popping noises and then observing heavy black smoke and flames shooting from the area of the brick, slate-tiled building that adjoins a large structure of beams and transformers. The sub-station is owned by DTE Energy and functions to regulate voltage for an estimated 4,000 homes and businesses in the city.

According to DTE Executive Director Distribution Operations Ryan Stow, the substation, which now must be totally rebuilt, contained transformers, protection and control equipment and circuit breakers to interrupt any short circuits or overload conditions that occur in the network.

Stow was reticent to give specifics about the fire or the size and character of the electrical equipment stating, "It was a failure in the sub-station the led to the noise people heard." His only comment as to the cause of the fire, which he said is still under investigation, was that the fire was "not related to an overload" and could have been caused by "animal interference-like a squirrel."

Numerous fire-related incidents like the one at the Plymouth substation involving electrical equipment can contain polychlorinated biphenyls (PCB) and are known to result in widespread contamination of buildings and structures, according to the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health.

Wayne councilman could face recall vote

City of Wayne Councilman Christopher Sanders is facing the prospect of a voter recall election next year.

Ron Roberts, acting as the spokesman for the Concerned Citizens of Wayne group, announced at a recent meeting of the city council that the group had filed six proposed petitions for a recall of Sanders with the Wayne County Board of Elections Aug. 14. Roberts said that the three-member panel would approve the language of only one of the petitions within 10 to 20 days of submission.

"I'd just rather not say what the language is that was turned in," Roberts said. "Any language not accepted by Wayne County, we'll just keep quiet. The law says that the language only has to be factual, so I am sure one of the petitions will be approved."

Roberts confirmed that recall language was submitted to the county against two other sitting council members, but declined to identify those officials.

"They need to get the message that we are not happy with them," Roberts said.

Sanders, 48, who has served on the city council since November of 2015, said he would rather not comment on the petitions or the language as he hadn't seen it and had no idea what the claims or basis might be.

Roberts said that citizens'

Township water rates hiked by 8 percent

Water rates in Plymouth Township have been increased by 8 percent following approval of the measure by a 5-2 vote of members of the board of trustees.

The new rates are an average increase of $56.35 annually or $14 every quarter, according to Township Treasurer Mark Clinton. Average township residential water bills are now estimated at $992.16, based on a fee of $10.20 per 1,000 gallons.

Jerry Vorva, Clinton and trustees Chuck Curmi and Gary Heitman voted in favor of the increase.

The new rate was called for by Heise who told the board members that the township needs to increase the water-sewer cash reserves that are now at $4.2 million. The reserves topped $10 million at one time, officials said, and helped defray any rate increases for water and sewer services. Heise also said that it was necessary to impose an increase in order to recoup the losses in the fund as a result of the previous administration lowering the water-sewer rates by 5 percent as an election ploy.

Dempsay said his no vote was prompted by his need for more data regarding the actual revenue the township needed and that he did not have enough information on which to support the rate hike.

Clinton had earlier proposed a 5-percent rate hike based on an analysis of rate increases ranging from 5 to 10 percent he presented. He favored a 5-percent increase but after discussion, voted in favor of the 8-percent proposed by Heise. He said group would have 60 days after approval of the language in the recall petitions to gather 1,300 signatures of registered voters in Wayne agreeing to put the recall question on the ballot.

"With the legal restrictions, which say it can't be less than 90 days after the signatures have been accepted, it would be on the ballot in November of 2018," he said.

Roberts added that should the language of all six petitions be rejected by Wayne County officials, he will attempt to correct any mistakes and re-file the the 8 percent will generate the $15.2 million in revenue necessary to operate the water-sewer system in the township, pay the debt obligations and set aside $1.5 million for emergencies and maintenance.

Heise said his concern was based on his experience as a Wayne County environmental director and drain commissioner.

"I've seen what happens when government doesn't budget for future needs," he said. "We don't want to get caught in

WESTLAND

City buys ambulances

Medical emergencies will be a bit less stressful for Westland residents with the purchase of two new rescue vehicles by the city.

Members of the city council approved the purchase of two new Type 1 EMS Rescue Vehicles last week at a cost of $894,000.

"The new rescues were purchased with reliability, patient comfort and safety in mind," said Westland Fire Chief Michael Strathner. "In the past our vehicles have traditionally been built upon a van chassis. This style of rescue is no longer offered in a diesel engine and had limited options we were looking for in-patient design."

These new vehicles are described as state-of-the-art and are equipped with a new liquid suspension, making for a better, smoother ride to the hospital for patients. They also have a new 6.7 liter diesel motor and LED light to enhance visibility when emergency lights are activated, Strathner explained.

The EMS rescue vehicles were purchased through Michigan-based Mercy Sales, utilizing consortium pricing through the Farmington Hills Fire Department. Westland received the lowest possible price and the more departments that purchase through the consortium results in a rebate from the manufacturer back to the city for added savings, officials said.

"The Westland Fire Department receives over 12,000 calls annually with about 83 percent relating to medical emergencies," said Westland Mayor William Wild. "The department relies on durability and understands that the patient should be afforded the best experience available from firefighters and their vehicles. The City of Westland makes providing them with the proper tools and equipment a number one priority to ensure the safety of those within our community," he added.

Appointment to Downtown Development Authority OK'd

Mo Elfakir has been reappointed to the Westland Downtown Development Authority (DDA).

Elfakir's appointment by Mayor William R. Wild was confirmed by members of the city council during their meeting last week.

The 11-member Downtown Development Authority implements and manages an improvement and business development plan in a commercial district along Ford Road and Wayne Road in Westland.

Elfakir is the owner of Biggy Coffee, located at 3960 Ford Road. He has been a Westland business owner for 10 years and is actively involved in a number of community events. Elfakir has served on the DDA board since 2013 and his new term will expire in 2021.

Mo Elfakir

"By taking one step inside Biggy in Westland, it is clear how much Mo cares about Westland and has made Biggy Coffee a staple in our community," commented Wild. "His unique perspective as a business owner has been a tremendous asset to the DDA Board."

(NIOSH).

Stowe said he "didn't know" if the sub-station transformers or equipment contained PCB, but added DTE changed out the oil and the transformers over the years.

Friday morning, however, workers dressed in protective gear were shoveling the heavy ash and oil-soaked debris from the site of the fire into black, 50-gallon sealed drums clearly labeled as containing PCB, apparently for hazardous waste disposal.

According to industry experts and leading fire professionals, PCB is considered a toxic chemical with residual characteristics. It was mainly found in insulating fluids (oil) in heavy-duty electrical equipment and transformers in power plants installed since the late 1920s. It is used mainly because of stability at high temperatures.

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) banned manufacturing of PCB in the U.S. in 1979 and immediately established controlled waste disposal regulations. Waste containing PCB must be destroyed by incineration or disposed in approved landfills. It is said to be bio-accumulative and not biodegradable. PCB exposure can lead to adverse health effects, according to the EPA. The non-flammable synthetic chemicals are still used as coolants and lubricants in electrical equipment even though the chemical is no longer manufactured in the U.S.

Aerial video footage taken at the fire shows enormous raging flames and a huge plume of thick black smoke billowing up in mushroom clouds from a large transformer directly at the rear of the building. Firefighters said the smoke is a characteristic of burning oil. One informed firefighter said the transformers could have contained more than 1,000 gallons of contaminated cooling oil.

Plymouth Township Fire Chief Dan Phillips said he was informed the oil in the transformers had been changed several times during the years but said he was being cautious about the reported risks of increased toxicity. He said rumors that the attending firefighters gear was to be destroyed and burned was "a half-truth." He added that PCB is destroyed in temperatures higher than 1,000 degrees, and that the heavy black smoke was a sign of incomplete combustion.

Phillips said the fire department gave "some" firefighter gear to DTE to test for the dangerous particulates and if the gear is safe, it will be cleaned and returned to service.

"We are taking an over-abundance of caution to make sure everyone is safe," he said.

Plymouth City Manager Paul Sineock described the performance and response by area fire department personnel at the fire as "phenomenal."

Witnesses said firefighters soaked the cultural center to prevent any sparks or flying debris to ignite at the building while continuing to battle the flames and smoke at the burning sub-station.

Phillips said he was equally pleased with the outcome and the performance of the firefighters.

"The (fire) departments did a great job containing the fire, protecting the cultural center and saving the sub-station building," Phillips said.

At the new rate, water and sewer costs in Plymouth Township are less than neighboring communities. City of Plymouth average rates are $12.07; Canton rates are $12.83; City of Northville rate is $14.99 and Northville Township residents pay $11.28, according to the analysis prepared by Clinton.

Company will invest $2 million in Plymouth

The last vacant space in Metro West Technology Park in Plymouth Township has been filled.

Polytec, Inc. a German company will invest $2 million in the technology park located on Halvard between Ridge and Beck roads in the township. The company will move a robotics laboratory and engineering and office space into the vacant two-story, 12,000 square-foot building. Polytec representatives said they will employ 10-12 people in the new location and hope to be in operation by next year.

Polytec builds laser-based vibration measurement systems to eliminate rattling and noise in products produced by the automotive and aerospace industries. The company also provides data storage and biomedical ultrasound services for manufacturers.

Members of the township board of trustees approved a 12-year, 50-percent tax abatement for Polytec at a recent meeting. Township officials estimate that the business will generate $25,000 to $30,000 in tax revenue during the 12-year period.

Polytec has subsidiary facilities in Japan, China, Singapore, France, England and Sweden along with American properties in California, Massachusetts and in Dexter, MI.

INKSTER - WAYNE

Inkster Legend Director Fred Smiley and veteran Detroit Pistons announcer George Blaha share a moment at the 20th Anniversary Inkster Legends Basketball Camp.

Inkster Legend Coach Stephanie Davis gives students' attention at Legends basketball camp.

Students gather for instruction during the 20th Anniversary Basketball Legends of Inkster camp at the Booker Dozier Recreation Center in Inkster last month.

Basketball Legends marks 20th summer camp

The Basketball Legends of Inkster celebrated the 20th anniversary of the organization this year with the traditional free training camps for young players.

This year, to honor the two decades of dedication to teaching basketball to students, several special guests participated in the daily camp lessons, noted program founder and current President and Director Fred Smiley.

"Aisha Thomas, a personal trainer from the Romulus Athletic Center showed the kids how to get in shape and stay in shape," Smiley said. "We also had former camper Alex Legton, who started at these camps as a 9-year old and now plays professional basketball in Italy, coach the kids."

Smiley added that this year the students all understood how important it was to pay attention if they were going to learn the basic skills of basketball during the camp.

"They understood how important it is to have a good attitude while learning the proper way to play the game of basketball and that attitude is the most important part about education and life," Smiley said. "The coaches gave the kids some wise advice and they all did a phenomenal job."

Piston announcer George Blaha was at the camps for the 20th year and surprised the Booker Dozier Best-In-Camp award winners with two tickets for the Pistons first home game at the new Little Caesars arena.

"I want to personally thank all the volunteers who made camp another huge success. This is what happens when everyone takes ownership in the Inkster Legends Basketball Camp," Smiley said.

"I also want to thank the sponsors who are just too many to mention in fear of leaving some-petitions.

"I've never been involved in any kind of recall, I always thought these things were a waste of time, but I really think this is necessary," he said. "This is a serious group of people. It's not just me involved. We want to make Wayne up and get them to do the right thing."

Roberts, 61, said, "I am just trying to get my city to run properly."

Sanders received a notification from the elections commission Monday that the hearing on the matter is set for noon Aug. 30.

Sanders, a lifelong resident of Wayne is employed at Ford Motor Co. His current city council term will end in November, 2020.

While he declined specific comment on the charges, Sanders did say that he felt the basis for the petitions contained erroneous and false information and that the law requires that the petitions be factual and the language clear.

"I was elected to serve the best interests of all Wayne residents, which I intend to keep doing no matter what political pressure and tactics are used to deny my efforts," he said.

Christopher Sanders

Roberts stressed that the group of citizens is "very serious" about the recall effort.

"We already have 20 people committed to getting signatures," he said. "We can only be stopped by Wayne County. Chris Sanders may bring this community together after all."

Scarecrow entries sought

There are some unique visitors expected in downtown Wayne this fall and Wayne Main Street is welcoming them wholeheartedly.

Registrations for the Wayne Main Street Scarecrow Show will be accepted through Sept. 22. The event is open to all members of the community and an entry form can be downloaded at downtownwayne.org/volunteer/2scarecrows or by registering in person at the Wayne Historical Museum, located at One Town Square in Wayne. The entry fee for the Scarecrow Show is $20 or $15 for returning participants who already have a frame.

Scarecrows will be on display throughout downtown from Sept. 30 through Nov. 3. More than 70 unique scarecrow creations are expected throughout the area and residents and visitors can vote for their favorite.

Wayne Main Street will host a voting contest and reception in from 3-7 p.m.

Oct. 19 at Derby's Alley, 35005 W. Michigan Ave., Wayne. The 2017 Scarecrow Contest Winners will be announced at that time.

Launched by Wayne Main Street in 2012, the Wayne Scarecrow Show has become a signature event for downtown Wayne.

"Scarecrows are a great community building activity. Our goal is to get everyone in Wayne excited and involved in the things that are happening in downtown Wayne," commented Angie Jarman, Wayne Main Street committee member and scarecrow project manager.

Each year the Scarecrow Show draws thousands of visitors to downtown to view the over 70 scarecrows installed throughout the city commercial district, a spokesman added. For more information, contact Wayne Main Street at director@downtownwayne.org or call (734) 629-6822.

NORTHVILLE

Fire safety rating lowers insurance rates

Residents in Northville Township may not be aware that they receive an extra benefit from the high-rated fire protection services in the community.

Homeowners insurance rates which are factored, in part, on the Insurance Services Office classification of local fire departments, are markedly lower in the township due to the fire department rating.

The Northville Township Fire Department is rated in the top 1 percent of fire departments in the State of Michigan according to the latest independent classification. There are only 29 departments in the state that rate a 3 on a 10-point scale system among the 2,017 fire departments across the state, according to a prepared statement from township fire officials.

The Insurance Services Office (ISO) is an advisory organization that collects information useful to the insurance industry through the Public Protection Classification (PPC™) program. ISO representatives evaluate municipal fire-protection efforts in communities throughout the United States. Community investment in fire mitigation is a proven and reliable predictor of future fire losses, officials said.

Categories evaluated in determining a community rating include the emergency communications system along with fire department equipment, staffing, training, and geographic deployment of fire companies, water supply system and community efforts to reduce the risk of fire. Community efforts include fire prevention codes and enforcement, public fire safety education, and fire investigation programs, officials said.

Residents of Northville Township benefit from a high ISO rating, reducing the cost of home owner's insurance premiums along with receiving high-quality fire department services. The program also provides fire departments with a benchmark and is used by many departments as a valuable tool when planning, budgeting and justifying fire protection improvements.

Northville Township Director of Public Safety Todd Mutchler said that the township fire department is committed to providing exceptional fire and Advanced Life Support services to the community.

“Our fire department has a philosophy of continuous improvement regarding service delivery,” Mutchler said.

Commission OK's 2 new downtown site plans

Members of the Northville Planning Commission have approved site plans for two projects in the city.

The commission members were satisfied with the plans presented for a new Italian restaurant to be located in an existing building adjacent to Town Square. The new eatery is named for the location, 160 Main, and plans include a full panel of windows on the front facing Main Street and striped awnings over windows on the west side of the building facing Town Square where there will also be a set of balcony doors.

The second floor of the building will be renovated into a mezzanine level, with an overlook onto the main floor dining area. The restaurant will offer both dine-in and carry-out service, according to proprietor Brian Maiorana. The architect is Brian Carpenter of AJ Studios, Architects PC, of Troy.

The second project approved by the commission during the Aug. 15 meeting is a building addition to the library.

The project will convert 800 feet under an overhang on the northeast side of the lower level into an enclosed space for a meeting room and two group study rooms. The architect is Merritt Chesak Design, PLLC, of Farmington, according to plans submitted to the commission.

Each project will require approval of the proposed plans from members of the Historic District Commission and members of the Northville City Council.

CANTON

'Striker to the line' Old fashioned baseball played Sundays

Area residents are invited to step back in time and experience a series of Civil War era baseball games featuring the Canton Cornshuckers. This local team will take on several Metro Detroit challengers in the Base Ball style of the 1860s, which at the time was considered a gentlemen's game of friendly competition.

The Canton Cornshuckers play vintage base ball at 2 p.m. Sundays in Heritage Park, located adjacent to Canton Administration Building at 1100 S. Canton Center Road in Canton. Upcoming opponents include the Rochester Grangers Aug. 27 and the Plymouth Red Rover's Sept. 10.

The players, also known as 'ballists,' will wear reproductions of period uniforms and recreate the game based on rules of 1867. The game or 'match' will be played by two area teams using 'original' rules of base ball, which include: no gloves, no bunting, no foot-first sliding, or over running first base. The teams to bat first will be determined by a coin flip or bat toss prior to the match. Nine full innings will be played, regardless of which team is ahead in runs or rallies. The match will use a lemon peel base ball, measuring 9.75 inches in circumference and 5.75 ounces in weight. These vintage base balls are larger in comparison to modern baseballs, which have a circumference of 9.25 inches and weigh in at 5.25 ounces.

The pitcher or 'barker' will deliver the ball with an underhand pitching style to the batter's or 'striker's' request, in an effort to ensure that the player at bat will be able to hit the ball. Modern-day balls and clothes are not called unless a pitcher/barker fails to deliver the ball fairly. The playballist will then be warned by the umpire. If the batter/striker fails to swing at fair pitches, he will also be warned by the umpire. Foul balls or 'fool ticks' may be caught in the air or on a single bounce for an out. Fair balls must be caught out of the air for an out. Match errors are recorded as "mauffs."

In modern baseball, a ball must cross either third or first base in fair territory to be a fair ball. In 1860s rules, balls are determined fair or foul, based on where they first land. So, a ball may land in fair territory first, then roll 15 feet into foul territory, and still be a fair ball. All bats are hand made out of Ash, Maple or Birch, often made by members of the team.

To add to the vintage feel of the match, every player has a nickname that they have earned, such as: Marbles; Tex; Teddy; Muffin Man and St. Nick. In vintage base ball, a left-handed hitter is known as a 'wrong hander' and a foul tip is called a 'tick.' Outs are called as hands down, so one out would be one hand down and two outs would be two hands down. The 1860s action also includes 'striker to the line' (batter up) and 'well held' (good catch), remarks encouraged from the audience.

Recreation directors named to state board offices

Canton Leisure Services Deputy Director Jon LaFever and Youth Recreation Specialist Laura Mortier were recently elected to the mParks board of directors.

Starting next month, LaFever will serve as mParks president-elect and Mortier will serve as mParks board member at large. The mParks board of directors is responsible for leading and governing the state advocacy association, formerly known as the Michigan Recreation and Park Association. Of the seven members, five mParks board members are elected by the membership and two are appointed by the president upon approval of the board.

"We're very proud that these talented Canton Township employees are sharing their strong leadership skills on the state level," said Greg Hohenberger, Canton Leisure Services director. "Their expertise and passion for the industry will help mParks remain progressive as a parks and recreation advocate and advance its goals and initiatives for future generations to come."

Since 2001, LaFever has worked in a variety of parks and recreation capacities with Canton Leisure Services and as deputy director currently oversees and coordinates operations at several Canton Leisure Services facilities. In addition, LaFever and his staff are responsible for the planning and execution of Leisure Services large-scale special events. An mParks member since 2001, LaFever has been a frequent presenter at annual mParks conference and trade shows, is a member of the youth and teens and programming committees, has served as the mParks Michigan Youth Symposium chair and was recognized as the organization New Professional of the Year in 2006. He is currently an mParks director at large.

Mortier has worked for Canton Leisure Services since she was 17, starting out as a junior day-camp counselor and now is the full-time youth recreation specialist. She currently oversees the operations and programming of the B.L.O.C.K. Youth and Teen Center, summer camps, and special events. Mortier has been involved in many mParks committees and programs, serving as the chair of the youth and teen focus group and Michigan Youth Symposium. In addition, she was a youth innovative program winner and member of the conference and trade show committee, diversity committee, and most-recently the professional development committee, with the development of a Leadership workshop series.
