Festivals celebrate community spirit

Romulus Pumpkin Fest The largest family celebra-tion in the city, the Romulus

Downtown Development Authority Pumpkin Festival, is set for this weekend, Sept. 16-18 in downtown Romulus at the Historical Park

The 19th annual festival is expected to draw thousands of participants from Romalus and Southeast Michigan. City staff and dozens of vol-atters are making final prepa-rations for festival events including the Romulus Rotary Parade of Lights on Friday night, a car show Saturday, a tractor and lawn tractor show on Sunday, great food, chilon Sunday, great lood, chil-dren's games and a host of con-tests. There will be pumpkin-themed events and a great line-up of live musical entertain-ment all weekend long including their headliner band, Your Generation (formerly Fifty Amp Fuse), on Saturday night. Many of the activities are provided at no cost

The festival also places emphasis on history of the city. A number of old-fashioned events for families are planned and the museum and other his-torical structures will be open for tours.

Hunt Street will be close om Goddard to Bibbins over the three-day weekend. Goddard Road will be closed from Moore Street to the rail-road tracks beginning at noon on Friday through the duration we-day fe stival week end.

It was another record breaking year for 6th Annual Blues, Brews and BBQ festival in Westland

According to Mayor William Wild 15,000 people visited Central City Park during the two-day event and about 8,000 people attended the fireworks show cele-brating the 50th anniversary of the city

Saturday. Wild said the event generated $20,000 for 10 local non-profit organizations, put-ting the total earned by the event for community organizations at more than $150,000 to date in the past six years. Checks to the volunteer civic groups were presented during the regular meet-in honor of the city's 50th anniversary and it really took all hands on deck to pull of this incredible summer event."

The 10 non-profits receiving checks were: the Westland Chamber of Commerce, Goodfellows, Lions Chab, the Westland Citivans, Rotary, The Westland Community Foundation, Jaycees, Grange, the Westland Historical Commission and Warm Hearts. The local groups each provided volum-

teer manpower at the event including serving as greeters, grounds crew, and ID checkers, among a variety of other roles in an effort to make the event cost neutral to

Camp Inspire Science studies fill summer program

For 13 young women in Inkster, summer sant trading in sandals and shorts for lab coats and goggles and learning about sci-ence, math and the environment.

They took part in Camp Inspire, a five-week program organized by the Inkster-based non-profit Operation Refuge, designed to bolster their skills in the science, technol (STEM) fields ology, engineering and math

The camp had them perform exp its, learn from guest speakers and take field trips. "This is such an important program for our young people, and especially girls," said Velma "Jean" Overman, executive director of Operation Refuge and summer camp coordinator. "There is a big gap in this kind of education for girls, especia in our community." The camp was provided free or for w little cost, thanks to sponsors like DTE Energy Google and local businesses. Girls spont their days learning about scientific or technical topics and croating projects that allowed them to use their imagination and beain power There was a different emphas-sis each week. Speakers included engi-neers from DTE Energy, Gogle employees, who showed the girts how to write HTML, code, a golf coach, who taught them the mechanics of a good golf suitar, video game mechanics of a good golf swing, video game designeers and cheft. "The goal of the camp is to got girls excited about science, engineering, mathe-matics and technology by showing them all the ways in which they are immersed in their lives, inside the classroom and out," Deservon exit.

Overman said she's already planning a similar camp for next year working with the Schoolcraft College Radcliffe Center, where the banquet took place. She said providing those kinds of educational opportunities was even more important since the Inkster school district was dis-solved. "Our kids are deployed all over, and there's a huge transportation gap," she said. "We don't have a school right here in our community where we can do something like this."
