New board says $1.1 million missing

Don Howard
Staff Writer

During an informal discussion at the meeting of members of Plymouth Township Concerned Citizens last week, newly-elected Township Supervisor Kurt Heise, Clerk Jerry Vorva and Trustee Gary Holtman admitted that their first few days in office have been fraught with challenges left by their predecessors, including nearly $1,100,000 in funds that cannot be located.

Heise told the assembled membership of his frustration and that of the other officials who had only been on the job for six days at the time of the meeting. He discussed some of the specific problems that he, Treasurer Mark Clinton and the others had encountered. Heise explained that the new officials discovered an unusual number of records and files missing. He theorized that the records may have been digitized but said the new officials found many empty file drawers and records binders.

"All roads when looking for data appear to come to a dead end,"

The financial accounting should have been easily accessible through a $219,275 accounting system approved by the board of trustees in 2015. The computer program, from BSA Software of Bath, was purchased to replace the aging 22-year old financial management system at the urging of defeated 20-year Treasurer Ron Edwards.

Edwards told the board mem-weaknesses and highlighted Edwards' claim that a new software system would provide remedial accounting for the drug forfeiture program. Edwards said at the time it would take nine months to get the system installed and train employees.

According to Heise, the new BSA Accounting System, touted by Edwards and former Supervisor Shannon Price as being the solution to complete access to everything while the two sought board approval for the purchase, is not yet fully functional and access for employees is a problem. Most employees are only able to complete very limited tasks and are not fully trained.

Living worship Church presents annual Living Nativity display

An annual Christmas tradition in Canton Township will include a new twist this year.

The Living Nativity, a 15-minute outdoor walking tour depicting the story of Christmas will offer translation in Mandarin, Hindi, Spanish, and Albanian.

"This is a way members of our congregation who are multi-lingual can show some hospitality to others who share their culture of origin. We'd love for more people in our diverse community to hear the Christmas story in their native tongue," said Scott Petersen, associate pastor at Friendship Church.

The lighted, outdoor walking path passes through scenes of costumed characters of shepherds, angels, wise men, and the manger scene. Don Fraser of Real Life Farm has provided the sheep, goats, donkey and calf. This year, for added realism, a camel named Humphrey will join the cast from his home in Grand Rapids. Scenes are added and changed each year providing a new experience for people who have attended in the past, Peterson said.

There is no reservation or registration required. Guests can visit the scene any time during the evening. For those with mobility issues, a golf cart is available to enjoy the tour.

The free event will take place from 4:30-8 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 18 on the church grounds at 1240 North Beck Road, one half mile south of Ford Road.

Humphrey the camel will join the cast of sheep, goats, donkey and calf, along with authentically garbed humans for the annual Christmas nativity scene at Friendship Church.

Memorial service Saturday for long-time Northville Township Trustee Marvin Gans

Marvin Gans

The death of well-known and revered Northville Township Trustee Marvin Gans is being mourned throughout the area.

A tireless advocate for recreation and historic preservation, Mr. Gans served more than two decades on the Northville Township Board of Trustees. Mr. Gans retired from Schoecraft College where he was an administrator.

A 49-year resident of the township, Mr. Gans was re-elected in November to his sixth 4-year term on the board of trustees. He had previously served on the township planning commission for more than 30 years. Mr. Gans also served on the township economic development and land acquisition committees.

"Marv was very special to this community," said Township Treasurer Marge Banner in a prepared statement. "He devoted much of his last 40 years to public service for our township, as planning commissioner and trustee. He was more than that, however. He spent years with other volunteers fundraising for parks and recreation to improve amenities for the youth of our township."

A memorial service for Mr. Gans is planned for 3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 10 at First United Methodist Church, 777 East Eighth Mile Road in Northville.

Visitation will begin at 1:30 p.m. prior to the services.

Township recreation/grants director leaves job

Don Howard
Staff Writer

There are no plans to replace Plymouth Township Parks and Grants Director Mike Mitchell who reportedly resigned last week, according to newly-elected Township Supervisor Kurt Heise. Mitchell's departure and his whereabouts have been the topic of speculation for the past three months. Fellow township employees and residents have openly questioned Mitchell's job status after not finding him at any usual work location since mid-August. Many disgruntled township workers claimed that while he was not on the job, he was still being paid by the township.

Mitchell was the political appointee of defeated Township Supervisor Shannon Price, following him to the township from his staff job with the Wayne County Commission. Price created the new position for Mitchell in June 2016 after his appointment to the supervisor's job. Mitchell, paid $63,277 annually, served as Price's personal aide during his tenure on the commission. He took the new recreation/grants position in the township after approval by the former board members. His background check was reportedly completed by a committee including Northville Township Manager Chip Snider, Plymouth Township Human Resources Director JoAnn Coobatis and the late township Trustee Kay Arnold. At the time, Price told board members Mitchell's employment would generate cost savings to the township and landed his presumed expertise in writing grants. Plymouth Township Chief Dan Phillips, however, said he was unaware of any government grants for township public safety services written or prepared by Mitchell during Mitchell's tenure.

I don't know whether he quit, resigned or was asked to leave. He probably knew he wasn't going to stay long under my watch. Had I fired him, I'd have all the details.

Heise said he was told by Coobatis that Mitchell was "gone" when he arrived at township hall last week.

"I don't know whether he quit, resigned or was asked to leave," Heise said. "He probably knew he wasn't going to stay long under my watch. Had I fired him, I'd have all the details."

When Mitchell's employee status was questioned by residents and officials during the past months, Price dismissed the questions with a quick "his working reply."

Records obtained by The Eagle through a Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request show Mitchell was paid a monthly average of $2,553.85 up to Nov. 30. According to his Pay Statement Report his time card shows his last day of work as Friday, Oct. 21.

"Price was a political appointee, an at-will employee and we're not filling his position, we're saving the money," Heise said.

Mitchell's resume included a PhD in Molecular Cytogenetics, a master's degree in Human Genetics and bachelor's degrees in chemistry and biology.

Before working with Price on his campaign, Mitchell was a familiar face in Lansing and in the local political arena while serving as chair of the 11th District Republican Committee. He served as a legislative director for Wayne County Commissioner Joe Barone who filled the remainder of Price's second term when Price resigned to take the township supervisor appointment.

In July 2015, Mitchell was involved in an infamous altercation with former Treasurer Ron Edwards at the township park over the placement of No-Parking signs. Both Mitchell and Edwards vehemently denied the near fistfight altercation ever took place when questioned by Fox-2 News reporters. Later a seasonal park employee who witnessed the incident and a former township police officer park foreman exposed the details of the event.

Several calls to Coobatis and an email inquiry were not returned.

elsewhere in the state. We're working with BSA for training for all employees—we may have to start over with a clean system," Heise said at the meeting.

Clinton confirmed that Plante Moran auditors required "one piece of information," relating to the long overdue 2015 township audit and the missing $1.1 million. The audit was due June 30 and the state is now withholding revenue sharing funds. Clinton said he believes the glitch was somewhere in the reconciliation of the property taxes and pointed out that it was the clerk's responsibility to maintain the General Ledger; a job Edwards had assumed. Clinton said it's too early to say the money is truly missing, only that it is not where it is supposed to be and has not been located.

Clinton said he was not suggesting there was anything illegal and that it was something the Plante Moran auditors found.

"We don't know. I don't know what I don't know yet," Clinton said. "I'm not suggesting anything illegal."

In a revealing report letter drafted Nov. 20, Plante Moran auditors noted significant differences between bank statements and the general ledger that were not identified or corrected until three days before the new board took over.

"The amount of the difference was $1,100,000 more than the general ledger reported. When we investigated, it turned out to represent property tax collections that had been transferred to the General Fund but not recorded as such," the auditors noted in the report.

Vorva said they are very busy "spending time on tasks that have to get done," pointing to the township audit, zoning issues, computer access for all employees and FOIA requests.

"When you don't have a good accounting trail—we have to ferret that out, we're going to be reconciling bank statements, but we have to get the audit done," Vorva said.

The newly-elected clerk said he's not complaining, but "there was no transition" when he took control. "Nancy (Conzelman) never responded." He blames the assumption that Conzelman thought she had a valid excuse not to respond after she announced she was running as a write-in candidate, "obviously thinking she was going to be re-elected."

"We just have to get things done, and change the process it's too soon to say there was any wrongdoing," Vorva said. "I question how things were done and how things are supposed to work."

Vorva cited certain accounting practices and one major concern he has is the mailing of township bank statements to post office boxes.

"I'm working with the treasurer and Plante Moran to finish the audit. The detail just was not there...How do you lose checks? Was it gross negligence? It's no question there was sloppy bookkeeping."

There are 17 bank depositaries on record for township funds, accounts that were established by Edwards. Clinton said that at the Dec. 6 board meeting the board will be asked to approve next year's bank depositaries and he believes that number will go to four from the current 17.

Heise said he didn't want to label anything as gross negligence. "I can't make that determination now, but they've made us work a lot harder."

Hoffman said he fears there might be a time when the taxpayers could have to make up the loss, but added that it was only speculating.

The three officials urged the citizens group to continue their meetings and watchdog efforts. The group agreed to continue their meetings, after the first of the year on a bi-monthly basis beginning in January at the Plymouth Library and other locations to be announced.

Re-zoning of Vining Road land discussed

Members of the Romulus City Council and Planning Commission put their heads together last week to talk about a vast tract of undeveloped land with a lot of potential and few suitors.

The two bodies met in a study session to discuss the Vining Road Development District, which is between I-94 and Ecorse Road and Wayne and Meridian roads.

The issue came up in part because a developer, the Kojanian Company, had requested rezoning for about 140 acres that fronts Ecorse Road, said Tim Keyes, economic development director for Romulus.

"Since we're updating the master plan anyway, we thought it would be a good opportunity to talk about this," said Keyes. "We're looking for some direction."

There is about 1,000 acres of undeveloped land in the area and it is currently zoned for Regional Center uses, which are primarily retail, restaurant and hotel-related. The Kojanian Co. is requesting a rezoning to M-1, which would allow for light industrial uses, so they could construct a three-building, 900,000-square-foot warehouse development.

The city is currently updating the zoning master plan and, when the Planning Commission held a public hearing on the draft amendment to the Master Plan on Sept. 19, they tabled action and requested that a study session be scheduled with the city council members to discuss the Vining Road Development area.

It might make sense, Keyes said, to alter the zoning of the entire parcel to attract different types of developments that would bring jobs and additional tax base to the community. The Regional Center zoning has existed for more than 20 years without attracting much defined interest other than the regional outlet center announced last year.

The joint planning session was just a discussion, however. The planning commission has not yet made a recommendation for the council to act on.

"We haven't reached a consensus, yet," said Keyes.

Council fills vacant seat

Jesse Marcotte has been appointed to the Belleville City Council to complete the term of Kim Tindall. Tindall resigned from the council to take a job with the city to avoid any conflict of interest.

City officials interviewed five candidates who expressed an interest in serving on the council and selected Marcotte for the appointment last month. Others who applied included Randy Priest, Jeff Vernon, Kelly Bates and Martha Brown, all Belleville residents.

The four members of the city council voted each candidate with numerical scores following the interviews and consideration of their experience, education and other qualifications. Marcotte was the first choice of each of the officials.

Marcotte is a firefighter and Emergency Medical Technician with Northville Township. His family moved from Detroit to Van Buren Township when he was 5.

After serving as a member of the Van Buren Township Fire Explorers squad during his years at Belleville High School. He worked with the Belleville Fire Department and took college courses at night while a high school senior to successfully earn his EMT license just prior to graduation.

He worked as a firefighter with Van Buren Township at 19 and then transferred to Northville Township. He has served on the city planning commission for eight years and is also an athletic coach.

Marcotte has been a Belleville resident for 10 years.

Police continue investigation into gropings

Canton police continue to investigate two instances of sexual assault that took place last week at a local fitness center.

Officers were initially called to Lifetime Fitness on Hagerty Road in Canton at about 7 p.m. Nov. 28 in response to a call about a woman being approached and groped in the parking lot of the facility. According to police reports, the woman told officers she was walking through the parking lot talking on her cell phone when she was groped from behind by an unknown man.

Officers were again called to the facility at 9:30 p.m. on a second call regarding the same type of assault. This victim also told the officers that she was in the parking lot on her phone when the groping took place.

The women described their assailant as about 5-feet, 8-inches tall with a medium complexion and an average to stocky build. The women told police that the man was wearing black pants and a black hoodie sweatshirt. During the incidents, the victims said, the man had the hood pulled up.

Both women told police that they had immediately screamed at the physical contact and the assailant fled on foot through the parking lot. The victims could not tell officers where the man might have gone.

Police have requested anyone with information that might lead to the identity of the suspect call the Canton Police Department at (734) 394-5400.

Police added that individuals should exercise protective safety habits in parking lots, including parking in well-lit areas and walking in groups when possible.

"Always be aware of your surroundings, and keep your head up. While shopping, avoid carrying too many packages, and have your keys out and ready to unlock the door to your vehicle or residence," officers suggested.

Canton sailor serves in historic Pearl Harbor

Dusty Good

Navy Office of Community Outreach

As the nation pauses to remember the attack on Pearl Harbor, which occurred 75 years ago on Dec. 7, 1941, the occasion has special meaning for a Canton Township native who is serving in the U.S. Navy in the very location that drew the United States into World War II.

Petty Off. 2nd Class Ryan Shepard, a 2008 Plymouth High School graduate, is assigned to the Navy U.S. Pacific Fleet Headquarters. According to Navy officials, the U.S. Pacific Fleet is the largest fleet command in the world, encompassing 100 million square miles, nearly half the Earth's surface, from Antarctica to the Arctic Circle and from the West Coast of the United States into the Indian Ocean. The U.S. Pacific Fleet consists of approximately 200 ships/submarines, nearly 1,100 aircraft, and more than 140,000 sailors and civilians.

Shepard is responsible for avionics systems on the F-35 aircraft.

"I like that my job gives me the chance to learn something new every day," said Shepard. "My job is a lot of fun."

Being stationed in Pearl Harbor, often referred to as the gateway to the Pacific in defense circles, means that Shepard is serving in a part of the world - the Pacific - that is taking on new importance in American national defense strategy.

Pearl Harbor itself is home to more than 19,000 U.S. Navy sailors, 11 surface ships, 19 nuclear-powered submarines and 19 aircraft.

"I am honored to be here during such an important time," said Shepard. "I feel great carrying on the traditions from the men and women who served during that time."

While much has changed in 75 years, American sailors' core attributes of toughness, initiative, accountability and integrity remain today. The last legacy of the heroism and determination exhibited on Dec. 7, 1941 is the heritage Shepard and other service members remain committed to live up to in the 21st Century.

"It's important for those of us serving in Pearl Harbor today to remember the sacriety of those who served before us," said Admiral Scott Swift, Commander, U.S. Pacific fleet. "The important work we do every day honors those who were here 75 years ago and is a testament to the enduring value of our Navy's mission."

Man Who Shot Liberty Valance on Northville stage

The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance is the current production at Tipping Point Theater in Northville.

The story unfolds when an unconscious Ransom Foster is dragged into Hallie's saloon in the dusty lawless town of Twotrees. He fell victim to Liberty Valance, an outlaw even the marshal refuses to challenge. Once recovered, Foster sets himself on leaving town, but finds something worth staying for as he begins teaching Hallie to read. He is given a purpose in a broken land, but is it enough to save him from the vicious outlaw who still wants him dead?

He must make the choice to turn and run or to fight for what he believes in. It's a classic western of good versus evil.

Curtain time for The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance is 8 p.m. and the show will continue through Dec. 18 Thursdays through Saturdays, with matinees at 3 p.m. on Saturday and 2 p.m. on Sunday.

"Audience members can expect an exciting classic Western story told in a Tipping Point way-up close and personal," said director Angie Kane Ferrante.

"This particular production is challenging for a number of reasons. The story also deals with the issue of racial discrimination, which can be difficult to handle when told inside historical context. It's a fundamental layer to the story that needs to be handled delicately and truthfully," she added.

The theater is located at 361 E. Cady

St. in Northville. Tickets are $30 to $40 for adults, $28 to $33, for senior citizens, and $22 for the two preview shows on
