Recall group calls opposition tactics illegal

Don Howard
Staff Writer

Supporters and organizers of the recall effort against four Plymouth Township elected officials met some strong tactics from the opposition last week as they gathered for their first public organizational meeting.

Several residents in Plymouth Township reported receiving anonymous ROBO calls with a recording that claimed the grassroots citizen's activist group attempting to recall four township officials, "is a movement to raise our taxes by over $40 million." The recording also claimed that the recall group is an effort to "build a performing arts center," a claim that the group soundly denies and cites as blatantly untrue.

They are lies intended to exploit, manipulate and scare the weakest among us; most notably our senior citizens.

Organizers said the reasons for the recall have nothing to do with any proposed recreation center and are based solely on the performance of the four targeted officials: Township Supervisor Richard Reaume, Township Clerk Nancy Conzelman, Treasurer Ron Edwards and Trustee Kay Arnold.

Sandy Groth of the Plymouth Township United Citizens group said, "They are lies intended to exploit, manipulate and scare the weakest among us; most notably our senior citizens." Groth said the $40 million mentioned in the ROBO call was a cost for the PARC recreation project (Plymouth Arts and Recreation Complex). "People wanted a feasibility study for a

In the family Volunteers mark 25 years with foundation

Community service is a family affair for one long-time Plymouth/Canton family celebrating a quarter century of involvement with the Canton Community Foundation.

Paul Denski recalled that he was first approached about helping the fledgling Canton Foundation back in 1989 by a board member. The foundation was in the infancy of the organization and looking for people who would dedicate time to helping the community.

"Reluctantly, I attended a meeting and found out what makes a community: caring people with a common commitment to help in any way the place that they call home," said Denski. "We all shared our concerns and what we thought were the things we could do to enhance the place we live. I couldn't help but be drawn to the causes that everyone agreed needed to be addressed."

As the foundation celebrates 25 years in the community, Denski is still a member of the board of directors and still active in helping make a difference in the community. "It has been a pleasure to meet and work with the leaders in the community that went out of their way to help in ways I never could have dreamed when I first joined CCF," said Denski.

Denski and his wife, Kathy, have committed themselves to giving back to the community during the past quarter century. Not only have they made that personal commitment, but they have passed that on to their three children.

In 2003, the couple established The Denski Family Scholarship Fund.

Active community philanthropists Paul and Kathy Denski (center) surrounded by their son, Paul M., at left, daughter-in-law Megan, Paul W. Jr., Kathy, son-in-law, John Schultz and twin daughters, Kendall and Eren.

"The decision behind why our family chose to create the scholarship fund came easy," said Paul Denski. "Our daughters were both active as cheerleaders when they attended Plymouth/Canton High School. During their four years of dedication to the sport we were given a full perspective of how big the commitment to the sport of cheerleading truly was. With the creation of The Denski Family Scholarship we can help give other cheerleader athletes the opportunity to be recognized for the hard work they put forth when participating in the sport of cheerleading, as well as their commitment to their academics and their intention to help others in their community."

Today, volunteering with the Canton Community Foundation is a family affair. The Denskis recently recruited their children to join committees at the foundation.

"When my wonderful father volunteered me for this year's Foundation Golf Committee, I thought, 'How am I ever going to fit this into my already busy schedule?'" said Denski's son, also named Paul.

"But being involved, and the fact that they were willing to work around my schedule, I enjoyed it very much and can't wait until next year!"

Along with young Paul being on the Golf Committee, daughter Kendall, a kindergarten teacher, was a perfect match for this year's Scholarship Committee, and daughter, Eren, a Special Events Manager, serves on the Events Committee.

The whole family is pulling out all the stops this year and Paul and Kathy have been named co-chairs for the upcoming 25th Anniversary Gala, which is planned for the Henry Ford Museum on March 7, 2015.

"I know my life has been enhanced by just being a part of the foundation, and I am proud to have been able to help others as part of this organization," Paul Denski said.

Officials to discuss 'Envision Romulus' survey results

The City of Romulus will start the New Year with a new vision.

Members of the city council will meet in a study session at 6 p.m. Jan. 5 to discuss the results of the Envision Romulus visioning plan process that took place this the summer.

"This is the first public presentation since we've approved the vision process," said Mayor Leroy Burcroff. "From there we'll be taking it out and introducing the data schools and other community groups."

He said other Romulus boards like the planning commission, recreation commission, Tax Increment Financing Authority (TIFA) and more would be invited to the 90-minute study session, as well.

Burcroff proposed the Envision Romulus process in May, and the city scheduled meetings during the summer, gathering input from residents, business people, school officials, civic leaders and others in order to help shape the future of Romulus. The Envision Romulus plan includes ideas on planning, land use and policy in the city.

"I've been passionate that we need a vision to help plan our community's future," said Burcroff. "It's so important to get everybody included in the process of shaping the community."

Throughout the process, Orchard, Hilz and McClement (OHM) the firm contracted to work with the city on the plan, gathered information from prior planning studies, the U.S. Census, mapping sources and community meetings and forums. OHM also surveyed people inside and outside of Romulus to gauge the reputation of the city, strengths, weaknesses and opportunities. Residents were asked about their ideas for the future and what kind of community did they want to live or work in.

"This will influence our master plan, our recreation plan and our capital improvement plan," Burcroff said. "This will be our vision of where our city wants to go."

'Intent' of new ward voting to be probed in Wayne

Those who drafted the new ward or precinct voting charter amendment in the City of Wayne will be asked to make their intentions clear in an effort to implement the new procedures recently approved by voters.

Voters approved the new voting system along with term limits on elected officials in November, but City Clerk Matthew Miller has notified members of the city council that he needs more information to implement the new plan. Miller also proposed the hiring of a consultant from GIS Capability to help correctly configure the seven voting precincts and six wards in accordance with state election laws. Miller said that the state requires the wards be contiguous and have no more than 3,000 voters. Miller said that the number of residences in a district isn't always indicative of the number of voters. He said changing a precinct boundary can have a huge impact on the number of voters in a district.

Northville history teacher wins state honor

Northville High School history teacher Joe Cislo joined an elite group of educators last week when he was awarded the Annette and Jim McConnell History Educator Award from the Council for History Education.

The award is named for the founders of the council and is presented to only six history teachers in the state annually. One of the criteria was the demonstration by the teacher of a commitment to providing quality history education to students. Cislo was nominated by a colleague or school administrator citing his ability to engage students in learning history and his innovative and creative teaching. A history lesson plan consisting of student-centered lesson, connected to the Michigan Standards and Benchmarks was also part of the evaluation process.

"Receiving the award feels great. I love teaching, and it's very encouraging to be acknowledged in this way," said Cislo, who began teaching in Northville about 14 years ago. He previously taught in the the Grosse Pointe and Cicero, Ill, districts.

I'm a history teacher, and I really enjoy the narrative aspect of my discipline.

"I'm a history teacher, and I really enjoy the narrative aspect of my discipline," Cislo said of his motivation in teaching. "Working with kids to frame the story, develop the details, and make connections to the modern world - these are the parts of the classroom experience that I really enjoy.

"Long after they're gone from my classroom, I want my students to be curious, to think about things from multiple perspectives, and to make informed choices," he said.

Cislo teaches U.S. History, AP U.S. History and Big History to ninth- through 12th grade students at Northville High School. Next year, he will be teaching History of the Americas in the International Baccalaureate Diploma Program. He's also taught creative writing and advanced placement world history and government classes.

Cislo earned his bachelors and masters degrees at the University of Michigan, and a masters in teaching degree from the University of Chicago, where he did his student teaching.

IKEA to install 40,000 solar panels at store

The 44,000 square-foot expansion of the IKEA store in Canton will include 40,000 square feet of solar panels on the roof.

IKEA officials last week said that the solar panels would be installed beginning next spring and completion is set for summer of 2015.

The solar addition will consist of 765 panels, and will produce 287,490 kWh more of electricity annually for the store. Including the existing system, the IKEA solar installation of 4,925 panels will generate 1,426,490 kWh of clean electricity yearly, the equivalent of reducing 984 tons of carbon dioxide (CO2), eliminating the emissions of 207 cars or powering 135 homes, according to company officials.

"We are happy to have this opportunity to increase the amount of solar energy generated and used by this store," said Matt Hunsicker, IKEA Canton store manager. "This is another example of the IKEA commitment to create a more sustainable life for communities where we operate."

The development, design and installation of the enhanced solar power system at IKEA was entrusted to Inovateus Solar LLC, an industry-leading solar power distributor and integrator specializing in large-scale solar installations.

Expanding this array contributes to the IKEA solar presence of nearly 90 percent of U.S. locations with a total generation goal of 40 MW, officials said. IKEA owns and operates each of its solar energy systems atop its buildings - as opposed to a solar lease or power purchase agreement- and globally has allocated $1.8 billion to invest in renewable energy through 2015, reinforcing its confidence and investment in solar photovoltaic technology, a spokesman said. Consistent with the goal of being energy independent by 2020, IKEA has installed more than 700,000 solar panels on buildings across the world and owns approximately 157 wind turbines in Europe and Canada, with 104 more being built in the U.S.

Santa, baby

Santa and his elves arrived at Maybury Farm last weekend and will be there from noon until 3 p.m. this Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 13 and 14 and again Dec. 20 and 21. Santa will be waiting to meet with children of all ages on his antique sleigh in the Maybury Farm Welcome Center. Children can bring their wish list and sit with Santa on his sleigh while moms, dads, grandmas and grandpas take photos. The Welcome Center shelves will be stocked with special Christmas gifts including Maybury Farm honey, jams, jellies, popcorn and more. Admission is just a smile and a small donation to help feed the animals at Maybury Farm throughout the winter months. Maybury Farm is located at 50165 Eight Mile Road, between Beck and Napier (do not enter at the state park). Parking is complimentary. INKSTER - WAYNE - WESTLAND

Nankin Mill holiday lighting is set for Saturday

Wayne County Parks and the Friends of Nankin Mills will host the annual Family Holiday Fest and Mill Lighting from 3:30-5:15 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 13. There will be several holiday crafts, games and prizes for children in the Nankin Mills Interpretive Center. Immediately following, there will be a short outdoor ceremony with the mill lighting and sing-along, ending at 6 p.m. Children will have the opportunity to visit Santa and enjoy refreshments after the mill lighting.

"The Holiday Fest and Mill Lighting is another way in which Wayne County Parks helps to spread the joy of the holidays," said Wayne County Executive Robert Ficano. "I encourage everyone to enjoy the Holiday Fest and Mill Lighting, our ongoing Lightfest and all of the great family-oriented events offered by Wayne County Parks," Ficano added.

There is no charge to enjoy the mill lighting and Santa visit. However, to participate in crafts and games, the cost is $6 per child and $2 per adult, for Wayne County residents and $7 per child and $3 per adult, for non-county residents. Pre-registration is required as space is limited.

The Nankin Mills Interpretive Center is located at 33175 Ann Arbor Trail in Westland.

For more information on this or any other Wayne County Parks event, visit www.waynecounty.com or call (734) 261-1990.

Inkster grant funding OK'd

Officials in the City of Inkster approved final allocations for the $220,347 funding received through the Wayne County Community Development Block Grant Program.

The program is a system of federal funding administered through the county.

This year, Inkster officials approved the spending of $11,000 on administration in the city and a total of $88,000 for city wide code enforcement.

In addition, $78,347 will be spent on demolition of blighted buildings in the city and $25,000 on city wide housing rehabilitation.

A total of $7,000 of the federal funding is now budgeted to be spend on public services, including education and recreation city-wide from the Community Block Grant funds.

The estimated amount was obtained through the use of a formula that focuses on low to moderate income populations and communities and includes a population factor based on newly released data, according to the city website.

The budgeted funds all meet the Housing and Urban Development National Objectives by benefiting low and moderate income people and families and aiding in the prevention or elimination of slums or blight, according to city officials.

City Hall operations moved to school during roof repair

Employees in Wayne City Hall are going back to school. Literally.

Staff at the building will be moved into Vandenberg Elementary School while necessary repairs are being made to the city hall roof. The school has been closed since 2010 and will be leased to the city by the Wayne-Westland community Schools district for $1.

Regular meetings of the city council had been moved to the Wayne Activities and Banquet Center while repair estimates on the roof were under way. Firefighters investigating a smoke complaint at city hall earlier this year discovered that the trusses over the council chambers section of the building had failed and moved several inches out of place. One factor in the roof failure and damage was the weight of the heavy snowfall last year, officials surmised.

The actual cause of the initial smoke complaint, a motor in the air handling system, was quickly repaired, while the serious roof problem was a hazard and unsafe for meetings or other business.

The move and repair construction is expected to begin in the spring, according to city officials. The entire staff will be moved out of city hall while a contractor removes the entire roof, makes the repairs and reinstalls roofing materials. The roof may be slightly reconfigured from the former flat roof to allow for better drainage and weight bearing, according to the city.

The cost of the repairs is estimated at about $350,000, most of which will be paid by Michigan Municipal Risk Management Authority, the city insurance carrier, and coordinated by Belfor, a remediation company.

Voting

Council members agreed with Miller's request to hire a consultant and also discussed the possibility of more charter amendments to implement the seven voting precincts and six wards for city council elections.

The new amendment requires that council candidates live in the ward from which they are elected. Only the mayor will be elected by voters city-wide. Each city council candidate will represent a ward, under the provisions of the new amendment.

Miller said that it will be necessary to identify where voters live and how the population is distributed across the city. He said census data and qualified voter files could provide some of the necessary information which would be merged.

Under provisions of the new amendment, council candidates from districts 1, 2 and 3 will be elected in 2015 and districts 4, 5 and 6 will be elected in 2017. To be eligible, candidates will have to live in the district from which they are elected throughout their terms on council.

Council members directed city attorney Paul Bohn to facilitate a meeting with a committee of residents and council members along with charter amendment backers.

Fire fighters shop with kids

They are known as community heroes and this time of the year, they become heroes to children in need.

Westland firefighters suited up to shop at the Meijer in Westland for their annual Shop with a Hero event last Tuesday.

This year, 20 children participated in the event and shopped the aisles of Meijer with Westland Fire Fighters. The children also received a visit from Santa and a pizza party. "This is one of our favorite events of the year," said Westland Fire Chief Michael Reddy. "It is a great way to get in the holiday spirit and give back to the community."

This is the 10th year the Westland Fire Department has participated in the event and Meijer (located on Warren Road) is the sole sponsor.

County urges flu vaccinations

The Wayne County Department of Public Health is offering a walk-in flu shot clinic tomorrow, Dec. 12, as part of National Influenza Vaccination Week observance.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recommend a yearly flu vaccine for everyone 6 months of age and older as the first and most important step in protecting against influenza. It established National Influenza Vaccination Week in 2005 to raise awareness of continuing flu vaccination throughout the holiday season and into the New Year.

"Every year, the best way to prevent the flu and flu-related complications is by getting a flu shot," said Robert Ficano, Wayne County Executive, who received his annual flu vaccine earlier this fall at a Wayne County employee clinic in October.

"We continue to urge and remind Wayne County residents to protect their families against influenza by making plans now to get their flu shots before the number of cases increase."

U.S. flu activity typically peaks between December and February, and can last as late as May.

The flu is a mild to serious contagious respiratory illness caused by influenza viruses. It can lead to serious complications in infants and seniors and those with chronic diseases, and even result in death.

Dr. Mouhanad Hammami, Health Officer/Chief of Health Operations, Wayne County Department of Health and Human Services, stressed that it's not too late to get vaccinated in time for the holidays and winter months when flu viruses generally circulate the most.

"Getting the flu vaccine during late fall into winter provides ample time for vaccine protection before the flu season peaks," he said. "However, by not getting vaccinated, you put yourself, your family and those around you at risk. Flu vaccination can reduce flu illnesses, doctors' visits, absences from school and work and prevent flu-related hospitalizations and deaths."

The Wayne County Department of Public Health is administering the quadrivalent vaccine during the 2014-15 season, which provides 4-in-1 protection against four commonly-circulating flu strains worldwide.

The 4-in-1 vaccine is affordably priced at only $20. Medicaid, Medicare Part B and the Vaccines for Children program for eligible youngsters are also accepted to cover the cost.

Wayne County Public Health is one of a limited number of area health providers offering the quadrivalent vaccine. Hammami said that the vaccine is highly recommended for both its convenience and effectiveness.

"Even unvaccinated individuals who have already gotten sick with one type of flu virus may still benefit from vaccination since the quad vaccine provides broad flu protection against four different international flu viruses in circulation this influenza season," he said. "Other flu shots are also limited in the number of flu strains they protect against which is why the 4-in-1 vaccine offers greater and superior flu coverage for persons of all ages."

The vaccinations will be available at Wayne County Department of Public Health Clinic, 33030 Van Born, Wayne from 8 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. tomorrow.

Flu vaccines are also available by appointment at the Wayne County Public Health clinic for the remainder of the 2014-15 flu season while supplies last.

For more information, or to make a flu vaccine appointment, call (734)727-7101, or visit www.waynecounty.com.

BELLEVILLE - PLYMOUTH - ROMULUS

Bell ringers to compete during Red Kettle drive

The Salvation Army Red Kettle Campaign collected more than $20,000 just before Thanksgiving, allowing the organization to provide holiday meals to more than 250 families in the Belleville, Canton, Northville and Plymouth area.

The $21,244.12 total is about 12.3 percent of the organization goal or $225,000 for this year and puts the group 13.5 percent behind collections for the same time frame last year, according to major Keith Bailey and Sandy Kollinger of the Plymouth office of The Salvation Army.

To help promote donations and volunteer efforts, the organization has come up with bell ringing competitions this year.

"We are rolling out two new volunteer bell ringing competitions this year, as well as featuring a bell ringer of the day/week.

"The first competition is to the individual bell ringer that completes the most 2-hour shifts during the 2014 Red Kettle

Campaign. The second competition is for the bell ringer that refers the most new bell ringers.

"We have a fantastic prize for the winner of each category, plus an invitation to our awards luncheon in May. The bell ringer of the day will be featured on register.org and our weekly bell ringer will be featured on our Facebook site," Kollinger said in a prepared release.

"If you would like to become a volunteer bell ringer you may sign up online at either ringbell.org or contact Kollinger, volunteer and special events coordinator or Katie Wenzel, our Christmas kettle coordinator by calling (734) 453-5464 ext. 24.

"We live in a great community that cares for others. The Salvation Army could not do what it does without your help," Kollinger said.

The Salvation Army is located at 9451 S. Main St. Plymouth, MI 48170.

Grant funds firefighters

The City of Romulus entered into a grant agreement Monday night that could bring new equipment and provide training for five fire department officials at a reduced cost.

Through a regional FEMA (Federal Emergency Management Authority) Assistance to Firefighting Grant, the city could receive 27 800 MHz portable radios and related equipment as well as more than 70 hours of training for the five members for less than $20,000. The total cost of the equipment and training would be $195,000, but the city requirement is only a 10 percent match.

The grants are open to multiple jurisdictions and, by joining with them, the city has better odds of receiving the funds, said Deputy Fire Chief Kevin Krause. The City of Dearborn and Northville Township are the two lead agencies for the grants.

"If you apply for joint grants, where multiple agencies can co-operate, utilize the equipment and sharing those capabilities and same instructors for training situations, you have a better chance of securing those grants," said Krause.

The training includes instructions for incident commanders at major disaster sites.

project of this magnitude to decide if it is desirable, something we never got. All we want is people who will represent us with respect and to let voters decide."

Chris Hunter, a local attorney and member of the recall group, said he is looking into the matter to identify and trace the parties who are involved in the false information in the ROBO call claims. Hunter said he has also received calls from township condominium residents who say they were threatened eviction by representatives of their homeowners associations and a management company if they sign a recall petition or post a sign supporting the effort. Hunter says the ACLU (American Civil Liberties Union) is also interested in pinpointing the connections. Hunter said these tactics are an infringement of civil rights and the U.S. Constitution.

One of those called, Hunter said, was an 80-year-old condominium owner who was seriously distressed and frightened by the tactics. The resident, who asked not to be identified fearing retaliation, said that people in his condominium development were told supporting the recall movement, "would be grounds for eviction." The ROBO calls also urged residents to call E.

G. Nick's restaurant, where the fundraiser for the group took place last week, "and urge the business to stop financing the recall."

"The draconian tactics and abuse can not be tolerated; it's but another sign these people need to be removed from office," Hunter said.

Frank Agostini, owner of the popular downtown restaurant, said he was shocked at the harassment tactics when he has made no political statement or taken any position on the recall effort. The restaurant is frequently used for all types of events, funerals, baby showers, political parties-both Republican and Democrat, plus various ethnic groups. Agostini said none of these events are ever interpreted as his business support of any cause or political party.

"I'm simply a vendor. I'm a businessman. I don't ask people their political views or religious affiliation when they book a party here. This is just ridiculous in a town like Plymouth," Agostini said.

"These tactics are deplorable and show the real character and purpose of this recall against people who would use lies, scare tactics and illegal threats to retain their access to power, influence and finances in our community," Groth said. "To go so far as to threaten seniors and smear a business that constantly gives back to this community speaks volumes about why these people should not be in office."

Giving thanks

Romulus National Honor Society members continued their legacy of giving back to the community recently when students volunteered their time serving a free Thanksgiving dinner sponsored by the Romulus House restaurant. "Our students were excited to be a part of such a worthwhile event," noted National Honor Society advisor Kathy Abdo.

Police investigate report of child abduction attempt

The Van Buren Township Department of Public Safety Investigations Division is continuing an investigation into an attempted child abduction reported last Wednesday, Dec. 3.

According to police reports of the incident, at about 8:45 a.m. a 9-year-old girl walking from Parkwood Manor to Tyler Elementary School was approached by a man who attempted to grab her from behind. The child was able to escape and fled on foot home toward her residence, she told police.

The man involved was described as a black male, approximately 6-feet tall and weighing about 200 pounds. He was wearing a black ski mask and dark clothing, according to the description provided to police. Officers noted that there were no vehicles reported in the area at the time of the reported incident.

"There is very little information available at this time and the incident has been forwarded to the Van Buren Township Investigations Division for review and follow up investigation. The Van Buren Township Department of Public Safety and Van Buren Township Public Schools have issued advisory messages and are working together to keep the community informed as the police department processes investigative leads," noted a report from the police department.
